DUBLIN CASTLE,

31st July, 1901.

SIR,

I have to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 30th inst., forwarding, for submission to His Excellency the Lord Lieutenant, the Thirty-third Report of the Deputy Keeper of the Public Records and Keeper of the State Papers in Ireland.

I am, Sir,

Your obedient Servant,

(Signed), D. HARREL.

The Deputy Keeper,
Public Record Office,
Four Courts.

THE THIRTY-THIRD REPORT OF THE
DEPUTY KEEPER OF THE PUBLIC RECORDS
AND KEEPER OF THE STATE PAPERS IN IRELAND.

TO THE RIGHT HONOURABLE THE EARL
CADOGAN, K.G.,

LORD LIEUTENANT-GENERAL AND GENERAL GOVERNOR OF IRELAND.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR EXCELLENCY.

I respectfully beg to submit my Report, under the direction of the Right Honourable the Master of the Rolls, and pursuant to the 24th section of the Public Records (Ireland) Act, on the proceedings had during the year 1900 in connexion with the Public Records of Ireland.

1. The valuable series of seventeenth century maps of Ireland preserved in this Office have, through the courtesy of His Majesty's Commissioners of Woods, Forests, and Land Revenues, received an important addition by the presentation of a large map of the "Government of Athlone," which, with other maps and manuscripts of the Headfort Collection, was acquired by the Commissioners in 1837 from the then representative of Sir Thomas Taylor, who was deputy Surveyor-General of Ireland in the reign of Charles II. The map, which was of very large size, consisted of several Barony maps of the Down Survey, with similar contemporary maps of about the southern half of the County of Roscommon, of which county no other such maps are known to exist. From long exposure in former times the map had become so much discoloured and injured as to be in its then state of little use. The Roscommon portion, especially, being drawn on inferior paper, has suffered greatly. The importance and historical interest of the maps, as well as the desire of making them available for purposes of more general research, induced Mr. Stafford Howard, C.B., the Commissioner in charge of the Land Revenues in Ireland, through Mr. J. Harper Scaife, the representative of the Commissioners in Ireland, to present the map to this Office, authenticated copies being made for the use of the Land Revenues Department. The large map has been, as far as possible, carefully cleaned, re-mounted, and bound here, separated, in the process, into its original component parts.

2. The Commissioners had also acquired a number of Barony maps, which, though of the same age and character, differ in detail from the record series of the Down Survey. These appear to be, some duplicates, others, early copies of the series of Down Survey maps prepared for Sir William Petty, and which, in 1787, were copied in the Bibliothèque Royale at Paris by Col. Vallancey, for the Irish Government, to supply the defects caused by the disastrous fire of 1711, in the Record set of the Down Survey. Mr. Howard, through Mr. Scaife, has generously offered to this Office, for better preservation and more general utility, the Barony maps in the Land Revenue Office, on the like condition of being supplied with copies for use of that Office. The offer has been gratefully accepted as to those maps, which appear to be duplicates of the originals, and, therefore, of more value than the Vallancey copies already preserved here. The task of preparing the copies has been kindly undertaken by Major Haynes, R.E., of the Ordnance Survey Office, with the consent of the Treasury. This work was in progress at the end of 1900.

3. Among the Headfort Collection acquired by the Commissioners of Woods and Forests are also the volumes of the Civil Survey for many of the counties of Ireland. This survey consists of returns made in 1654--5 of the extent and value of the forfeited lands, and contains many facts not noted in the particulars and tables accompanying the subsequent mapped Down Survey. Mr. Howard, at the instance of Mr. Scaife, has most generously offered to make these Records also available to the public by placing them here, on the same condition, that copies should be furnished for use in the Land Revenues Office. The transcription of the books for Co. Donegal has been completed, and that of Co. Dublin was in progress at the end of 1900.

App. I 4. The Right Hon. the Earl Annesley having informed me that there were, in his library, a number of MS. books which he believed to be of a public character, I visited Castlewellan and examined them. I found fifty-one MS. volumes of a public nature, of which a brief catalogue is printed in the Appendix. Three of the volumes appear to have been originally books of the Irish Exchequer; twenty-seven belonged to the Trustees of Forfeited Estates, 1700-3, of which body Francis Annesley, an ancestor of Lord Annesley, was an active member. Twenty-one volumes form a remarkably fine set of the books of "Survey and Distribution," showing the disposition, under Charles II., of the ownership of the lands forfeited under the Commonwealth. Other similar, but not identical, sets are preserved in this Office, in the Land Revenues Office, and in the Library of the Royal Irish Academy. Several of the Trustees' Books are duplicates of books here; others, however, would prove a desirable addition to the Records relating to that Board preserved in this Office. It is to be wished that these, as well as the three Exchequer books, should be placed with the similar Records in public custody. The books have been judiciously cared, and admirably preserved by Lord Annesley and his ancestors.

5. In the earlier part of the nineteenth century a practice became very common of having marriages celebrated in Dublin by degraded or unlicensed ordained clergymen of the Established Church. The practice was put an end to by the Marriage Act of 1844. Soon after that date Mr. John Samuels, the Registrar of the Archbishop, to secure them from being lost, purchased some of the books of entries kept by these persons. Later, his son, Mr. Arthur Samuels, secured several more. On the death of Mr. J. H. Samuels, the Archbishop's late Registrar, the books were offered by his representatives to this Office, and they were last year purchased with the consent of the Lords of the Treasury. The books are estimated to contain notes of some thirty thousand marriages, of which, in most cases, no other record exists; and all ranks and creeds seem to have taken advantage of this expeditious and generally inexpensive method of celebrating marriages. The entries are generally carelessly made. An index to these books is in course of preparation.

6. The Registrar of the Estate Duty Office, having stated that he held a number of old attested copies of Wills, offered to submit them for examination, to test if the originals had in all cases been returned to this Office. Those of 1812 have been examined, and were found to contain one the original of which has not been identified. It is proposed to continue the examination.

7. Mr. T. Pakenham Law, K.C., has deposited here, under section 16 of the Public Records Act, an original indenture dated 28th Oct., 1639, between Dorraghan M'Cooge and Philip Begoe, conveying lands in Co. Galway.

8. Mr. G. S. Cary informed me that he had purchased at the sale of the library of a local antiquary a number of Visitation Books of the Diocese of Cashel, for various years between 1664 and 1772, which originally belonged to the Registry of the Diocese. Mr. Cary has placed some of the books here, and has generously promised, ultimately, to present the collection to the Office.

9. Mr. T. George H. Green has deposited a Visitation Book of the Diocese of Dublin, 1841, which had been purchased by him.

10. A vacancy has been caused in the upper staff by the transfer of Mr. S. Watt to the office of the Irish Local Government Board. The vacancy had not been filled at the end of 1900. One searcher and one workman, who were Reserve men, were called out to the war, and their places were kept open. The former has returned to duty; the latter died in South Africa.

11. With the approval of the Master of the Rolls, and the sanction of the Treasury, two of the clerks have been engaged outside office hours on work for the Historical MSS. Commission, under the superintendence of Mr. C. Litton Falkiner, one of the Inspectors of Manuscripts under the Commission.

12. The Lords of the Treasury have consented to the increase of the pay of the inferior workmen from 15s. to 18s. a week, a reduction of one to be made in their number on next vacancy.

13. The convenience of Readers has been consulted in the erection by the Board of Works, at my request, of dressing-rooms and lavatories for lady and gentlemen Readers in connexion with the Literary Search Room.

Rep. xxxli.,
par. 80-1.

14. In November I had the honour to submit to your Excellency's Chief Secretary, a scheme, approved by the Master of the Rolls, for a series of Irish Record publications, as suggested in my last annual Report.

15. Attention has been called to the fact that many of the earlier Reports of the Deputy Keeper of the Records in Ireland are now out of print. Before any proposal to reprint them is adopted I venture to suggest that as these Reports contain some matters that are not of permanent importance, or that have been superseded by later information, the desired object might be attained, at once more conveniently and economically, by reprinting in separate form such Indexes and Calendars as are contained in the Reports out of print, and by embodying so much other matter as may be of present and permanent value in a general Guide to the Records of Ireland.

16. At the request of the Record Branch of the General Post Office, London, transcripts were made for, and at the expense of that Department, of the Letter-books of the Chief Secretary's Office, Ireland, preserved here, relating to the business of the Irish Postal Service.

17. A map of the Curragh of Kildare, transferred from the Office of the Clerk of the Peace of that county, which, under the Curragh of Kildare Act, (1868), was directed to remain in that Office, and of which a copy was also received here from the Rolls Office, was, at the request of the Clerk of the Peace, returned to his care by order of the Master of the Rolls.

18. The examination and systematic arrangement of the large collections of Account and other books of the Vice-treasurer, Auditor, Teller, and other Officers of the Revenue in former times, which was undertaken, some years ago, by Mr. MacEnery, has been completed. The Records are described in App. II. his Report in the Appendix.

19. On the occasion of the hurried removal of the Records of the former Landed Estates Record Office from the Custom House, in 1869, a considerable number of Records which want of time prevented from securing a more orderly mode of transfer, were put into sacks, and brought here in that manner. The examination and arrangement of the contents of these sacks has been commenced by Mr. Ratcliff, and is in progress. Rep. II.
par. 39.

68. One hundred and eighty-five certificates were granted for examination of Records for literary purposes. Under these 3,401 volumes, or files of records, were produced for literary readers.

Arrangement and Preservation of Records.

Rep. xxxii.,
par. 65.

69. The arrangement of the Equity Exchequer Bills has been continued from November, 1745, to November, 1752, and of the Answers from May, 1742, to June, 1752, comprising 2,808 fasciculi made up in 442 brown paper covered parcels.

Ib. par. 68.

70. The re-arrangement and consolidation into a single series of the Cause Papers from the former offices of the Masters of the Court of Chancery, known as Masters' Papers, have been completed, 417 bundles having been dealt with during the year.

71. The wills and papers leading to grants of Probate and Administration for the year 1878 were finally arranged in 56 zinc boxes, and the increment of similar records for the year 1879 was stamped and arranged in 60 zinc boxes.

72. Three hundred and fifty-six Bankruptcy files in portfolios, for the year 1879, have been stamped and labelled.

73. A quantity of miscellaneous letters and papers, known as the Roden papers, from the Auditor-General's Collection, has been sorted, arranged, stamped, and made up into 44 parcels. The Accounts current of the various Poor Law Unions with the Finance Committee, under the Relief Act, 1847, have been similarly sorted and arranged in 135 parcels.

74. The Patents for Inventions, 1897, have been arranged and bound in 155 volumes. One hundred and fourteen volumes of Records, and forty-seven volumes of Search Room Indexes have been rebound.

75. The mounting on guards and binding of the Parochial Returns has been continued. Rep. xxxii.,
par. 71.

76. Six hundred and sixty-nine bundles of Consistorial Records of several Dioceses, 10 bundles of Custodiam Orders, 84 bundles of Queen's Bench Records, 734 bundles of Census Returns for the year 1841, and 478 bundles of Census Returns for the year 1851 have been stamped and made up into brown paper covered parcels.

77. Fifty-two bundles of Chancery Masters' Deeds, and 10 bundles of See Leases of various dioceses have been flattened and folded to an uniform size; and 433 bundles of See Leases and Building Papers have been placed in new wrappers and labelled.

78. One hundred and thirty-six Plea Rolls of the King's Bench, 108 bundles of Landed Estates Court Records, and 279 bundles of Incumbered Estates Court Records have been cleaned, re-papered, and labelled.

79. The annual increment of Records from twenty-four offices of the Clerks of the Crown and Peace has been arranged and stamped; and a number of detached Informations and Indictments of the City and County of Dublin have been arranged in order of date.

Indexing and Calendaring.

80. Indexes have been made to a Will, Grant and Diocesan Registry Book, 1704--1736, of the Diocese of Cashel; to two Will Books, 1786--1790 and 1796--1799 respectively, of the Diocese of Derry; and to a Will Book, 1654--1709, a Grant and Diocesan Registry Book, 1660--1693, and a Grant Book, 1675--1695, of the Diocese of Ossory.

81. The remainder of the series of Marriage Licence Bonds of the Diocese of Cork and Ross, covering the period from 1751 to 1845, and the Marriage Licence Bonds of the Prerogative Court have been indexed and made accessible to the public.

82. The revised indexes to the Wills of the Dioceses of Ardfert and Aghadoe, and of Elphin, have been re-engrossed for public use. The index to Ossory Wills has been amplified by the interpolation of the wills received from the Kilkenny District Probate Registry in 1899; and the index to Prerogative Inventories by the addition of a number of inventories previously classed as cause papers of the Prerogative Court.

83. The index to Administration Bonds of the Diocese of Ardagh has been collated with the original bonds.

84. A consolidated index to the Wills and Grants of the Court of Probate, 1858--1877, has been drafted, and is in process of arrangement. The index made to papers relating to Unions and Divisions of Parishes; and that to Unproved Wills from District Registries, have been engrossed for public use.

85. The work of indexing the Irregular Marriage Registers, which have been recently acquired (see par. 5), has been commenced.

86. A catalogue of the printed books in the library of this Department has been prepared.

Printing of Calendars, Indexes, and Records.

Rep. xxxii.,
par. 79 to 81.

87. Pending the receipt of authority to print the works suggested in my last report, progress has been made in preparing for press the text and translation of the Early Statutes, and in calendaring the Justiciary Rolls of the reign of Edward I.

Proceedings under Parochial Records Acts.

88. The Registers of Baptisms, Marriages, and Burials of fifteen parishes which had become attachable under 38 & 39 Vic., c. 59, by the death or resignation of the Incumbents, were included in the warrants of the Master of the Rolls for transfer to this Office. In four of these cases the books have been removed here; in six others they are retained in their parishes under Orders made under 39 & 40 Vic., c. 58; while five cases await completion of adequate arrangements in the parishes. The Records of S. Bridget, Dublin, also have been transferred, the building in which they were kept having been taken down, and the Retention Order previously made being consequently cancelled.

Rep. xxxii.,
par. 94.

89. In two cases Incumbents holding books under Retention Orders have adopted the suggestion made in my last Report of the desirability of securing the greater safety and increased utility of the older parish books by placing them in this Office. In one case—Shrule, diocese of Ardagh—the earliest register in a very fragmentary state, has been deposited here; in the second case the transfer was not completed until after the close of the year.

90. The Records of the Parishes transferred here comprise:

91. The parishes whose Records were included in warrants for transfer, but which keep them under Retention Orders, are:— Christ Church, Leeson Park, Dublin; Holy Trinity, Killiney; Inver and Larne; Killeslin; Kilrush; and S. Laurence and Holy Trinity, Limerick.

92. The number of Retention Orders, permitting the retention of Parish Records in approved receptacles in their respective parishes, which have been granted by the Master of the Rolls, is 592, of which 565 were in force at the beginning of 1901.

93. The Annual Reports required by the 6th section of the Parochial Records Act, 1876, from the clergymen to whose custody Records were committed under Retention Orders, were all duly received last year.

94. The Reports refer to injury from damp in nine cases. Suggestions have been made for protection of the books, which, it is hoped, may prove successful. The danger, however, from this source is very great in many of the country Vestry rooms. Books belonging to three parishes whose Records are held locally under Retention Orders, were repaired and rebound in this Office.

95. An additional volume for the parish of Desertserges, including entries from 1755 to 1836, has been found by the Incumbent, and formally committed to his care by supplementary order. A Vestry book of the parish of Killallon, 1820--1877, has been deposited here by the Rev. T. Rudd.

96. Complaints continue to be received from members of the public of the difficulty of obtaining information from Parish Records remaining in local custody. Two persons reported, during the year, that they had applied to parish clergymen for searches, but had been informed that the Records were not in their hands, although in each case books of the date required were in their custody. In both cases the books were found on representations being made from this Office. In another case a Record agent complained that repeated applications, extending over some months, to an incumbent, for permission to search his books, had failed to receive any attention. These instances afford further evidence of the public inconvenience resulting from retaining the older registers outside this Office.

State Paper Office.

97. During the year 1900 there were received from the Chief Secretary's Office the papers for the year 1890, in sixty-seven carton boxes, with one carton of additional papers of the year 1889. These papers have been examined, checked, and put up in fifty-two cartons, numbered 3,511 to 3,562. The Index and Registers for 1889 were received at the same time.

98. The Searches made for Government during the year amounted to 261.

99. An Index has been prepared to the Reports on Prisoners' Cases, 1777 to 1789. Progress has been made on the arrangement and indexing of the Papers for the period 1790 to 1800.

100. The papers of the Commissioners of Ministers' Money have been arranged, indexed, and parcelled. The arrangement of the papers relating to Tithe composition and applotment, 1824--35, has been commenced, and considerable progress made.

All which is humbly submitted to your Excellency as my Report.

Dated at the Public Record Office,
Dublin, this 25th day of July, 1901.

JAMES MILLS,

Deputy Keeper of the Public Records and Keeper of the State Papers in Ireland.

I humbly certify to your Excellency that this Report is made by the Deputy Keeper of the Public Records under my direction, pursuant to the Statute.

APPENDIX II.

REPORT OF MR. M. J. MACENERY ON THE BOOKS OF THE TREASURY AND ACCOUNTING DEPARTMENTS OF IRELAND.

These Records, consisting of several thousand volumes now deposited in the Public Record Office of Ireland were transferred from the Landed Estates Record Office in the Custom House, which included the Record Branch of the Irish Treasury.

This report deals with the principal Records of the Irish Treasury previous to 1837, when the office of Vice-Treasurer was abolished. In addition to the classes dealt with here, the books transferred include a small collection of a minor and miscellaneous character consisting of rough books from which the items were posted into the principal Account Books; semi-private books containing entries of private as well as public transactions; and books of a strictly private character which were kept by some of the Treasury Clerks who acted as agents. These books were left in the Treasury, and were transferred with the Public Records to this Office.

The Treasury Records belong to a great department succeeded and, to some extent, represented, by the office of the Paymaster of the Civil Service, Dublin Castle. They contain a complete and detailed account of every transaction connected with the Irish Treasury from 1545 to 1837. They supply in a classified and accessible form the strength of the Civil and Military establishments, the names of the principal officials thereof, with their pay salary and allowance, and the names of such persons as have received any sums of money from the Irish Treasury through the Royal Bounty or for exceptional services. Classified accounts of the various sources of revenue and the sums received therefrom are also furnished.

The yearly increase of revenue and expenditure may be seen: at first the expenditure is met by the receipts, and as both increase the expenditure has a constant tendency to exceed the receipts. This tendency was met for a time by money received in aid of taxation from Annuities, Loans, and Lotteries; but, when the expenditure greatly exceeded the revenue, a National Debt was eventually established.

As Account Books they cannot materially differ from those of any great Accounting Department. To explain the systems adopted for receipt, payment, check, audit, and management, a brief sketch of the Irish Treasury and the principal changes in the mode of keeping the Public Accounts is supplied.

The Irish Treasury.

Previous to the end of the year 1793 this department was nominally vested in a Lord Treasurer, but the business was really conducted by the Vice-Treasurer, who was also styled Receiver-General, Paymaster-General, and Treasurer at War. The Lord High Treasurer nominally was the chief Judge in the Equity side of the Court of Exchequer, and by the Act 10 Hen. VII., c. 1, like power was conferred on the Treasurer of Ireland, as on the Treasurer of England, to appoint revenue officers; and he was directed to account yearly before the Barons of the Exchequer and such of the King's Council as should be appointed by the Lord Lieutenant, and the declaration thereof was to be certified into England.

Notwithstanding this enactment the functions of the Treasurer were very limited. The Vice-Treasurer, in the sixteenth century, got the most ample power with regard to the receipt and payment of public money; and the principal revenue officers were appointed by the Lords Lieutenant under their own Warrants. After 1793 the office of Treasurer was granted to Commissioners who held office until 1817, when the Treasuries in Ireland and England were united.

The Vice-Treasurer was primarily the proper officer, on receipt of the necessary warrants, to make all payments on the Civil and Military Lists; he was also the proper person to receive payments into the Treasury and issue Acquittances. Associated with him in keeping the Public Accounts were the Auditor-General, the Clerk of the Pells, and the Chamberlains; while the Teller of the Exchequer was his executive officer. The Vice-Treasurer was responsible for the receipt, issue and management of the public revenue, and was liable to account for the same. Under proper Warrants and authority he made the payments authorised by the Civil and Military Lists, and the various payments under the heads of Concordatum, and Appropriated Duties. He, or his Deputy, received all monies payable into the Exchequer and gave acquittances for same, and he was bound to pass his accounts before the Commissioners of Treasury Accounts and the Auditor-General. The Teller or Cashier acting under his orders received the monies and prepared the Acquittances. He also made payments of public money on authority of Debentures or Orders from the Treasurer or Vice-Treasurer prepared by the Auditor-General.

The office of Vice-Treasurer was abolished in the end of 1793 and Commissioners were appointed to execute the office of Treasurer and to carry on the duties hitherto performed by the Vice-Treasurer.

A Receiver-General and Paymaster-General was appointed subordinate to this Board, and with a view to perform under its directions the duties previously performed by the Vice-Treasurer. The Commissioners adopted as far as possible the methods of the English Treasury, and on the 31st December, three days after they had been sworn as Commissioners, they ordered the Commissioners of Revenue, the Postmaster-General, and the Commissioners of Stamp Duties to furnish weekly abstracts of the receipts, issues, and remains in their several departments. Instructions were also issued to the Auditor-General, Teller, and Clerk of the Pells; but as the whole system was changed the following year it is not necessary to go into details.

The Act 35 Geo. III., c. 28, which received the royal assent on 5th June, 1795, regulated the receipts and issues of the Treasury, but the Act practically embodied the regulations made by the Treasury Board on the 26th February, 1795, and the new system was really in existence from that date.

The office of Receiver-General and Paymaster-General was abolished, and future vacancies in the offices of the first and second Chamberlains were not to be filled up. The Teller of the Exchequer became a most important officer in the new system.

A Receiver-General was appointed to receive all duties, aids, revenues and taxes collected and levied by the Commissioners of Customs and Excise, and he was to pay to the Teller, every week, all monies received by him on the previous week; and, for the purpose of issue, receipt, and keeping reliable accounts thereof, the Auditor-General and Clerk of the Pells were associated with the Teller, and their duties are sketched below under the headings "Issue of Money," "Receipt of Money," and "Accounts and Check."

This arrangement continued without any serious modification except the introduction of the system of making all receipts and payments through the Bank of Ireland until 1817, when the Irish Treasury with all its incidents was merged in the Treasury of the United Kingdom. The powers of the Lords Commissioners of the Irish Treasury were then vested in the Lords Commissioners of the Treasury of the United Kingdom, and a Vice-Treasurer was again appointed to transact the revenue matters of Ireland in accordance with their directions. The Auditor-General and Clerk of the Pells were associated with the Vice-Treasurer in keeping the public Accounts until the abolition of their offices in 1822. From 1822 to 1837 the Vice-Treasurer, under instructions from the Lords of the Imperial Treasury, executed everything necessary for the issue, receipt and payment of the public money for civil and military purposes; but in the year 1837 the Irish Treasury offices were abolished, and the Irish revenue became an integral part of, and subject to the same regulations as, the other revenue of the United Kingdom.

Previous to the end of 1793 payments on the Civil List were made on Debentures prepared and signed by the Auditor-General pursuant to the establishment letter, a copy of which was lodged with the Vice-Treasurer.

Payments on the Military List were made on Warrants prepared by the Commissary-General of Musters signed by the Lord Lieutenant, and countersigned by the Commissary-General.

Payments on Concordatum were made on Warrants from the Privy Council: they were not to exceed a certain amount, and were limited to special purposes. Payments of Appropriated Duties were made on Warrants from the Linen Board, or other parties entitled to receive them, and did not require a Government Warrant.

The Civil and Military Lists were the authority for all ordinary payments out of the Treasury. The Vice-Treasurer had no power to make payments not included therein without proper Warrants authorised or sanctioned by a King's letter. No Debentures or Warrants except those on Appropriated Duties were to be paid without being entered with and countersigned by the Clerk of the Pells.

Important constitutional changes were made in the year 1793. The King having surrendered his ancient power over the Hereditary Revenue the Act 33 Geo. III., c. 34, reciting this, enacted that a Consolidated Fund should be formed from the Hereditary Revenue and all Additional Duties, not appropriated; and in consideration of the surrender, it was enacted that a sum of £145,000 should yearly be paid thereout to meet the salaries and charges on His Majesty's Civil List, and a further sum to satisfy the Pension List.

Parliament for the first time got complete control over the finances of the country, and after March, 1794, supplies were voted by the Annual Appropriation Bill. To complete the change a Treasury Board was appointed, wholly responsible to the Irish Parliament.

The Board was authorised by the first Appropriation Act (34 Geo. III., c. 4) to make certain payments, and receive certain monies specified therein; and to issue the sum granted to His Majesty to meet the military and other services of the year as appropriated and allocated in the Act. While the Act was the ultimate authority for the payments, the immediate authority for the issue was two King's letters sent yearly when the Appropriation Bill was passed, one authorising the Civil, and the other the Military payments, specified in the Act.

The Commissioners forming the Treasury Board were appointed at the end of 1793, and regulated their process of issue according to the English method. They sent their orders to the Auditor-General who, having examined and registered them, sent on the orders for payment to the Teller. When the payment was made the Teller registered the order with the Clerk of the Pells.

A new system was started in February, 1795, which was established by Parliament in the following June, and thenceforth payments were made by the Teller as executive officer of the new Treasury Board.

The Commissioners were not to issue any money without the authority required in the Act, and the Bank of Ireland was to see that every draft from the Teller showed the particular service for which the same was drawn.

The Auditor-General having received Warrants from the Treasury Board prepared Debentures or Orders as his Warrants directed. In the case of orders, he submitted to the Treasury for signature a formal order for payment, and this was returned when the Board wished it to be paid. The amount and the fund for payment were then specified by the Auditor-General, and, after the order had been examined by the Clerk of the Pells, and had been perfected by the addition of his "examinatur et recordatur," it was sent to the Teller.

If the order was paid in full it remained with the Teller as his voucher, otherwise it was returned to the Auditor-General with a note of the part payment endorsed thereon.

and pensions, such deductions as were previously made in the Office of the Pells and Auditor-General, subdividing them into Poundage, Pells, Hospital, and Treasury Fees, and transferring them to the credit of the Consolidated Fund.

With reference to the Military Establishment, the regimental Agents monthly, or as often as necessary, applied to the Secretary at War for the sums necessary for subsistence and the allowance to their regiments. The Secretary at War, having all the materials for that purpose, transmitted to the Vice-Treasurer a statement of the amounts payable to individuals and the sums necessary for the subsistence and payment of the land forces, and directed him to pay the proper amounts to the regimental agents. On receipt of the statement from the Secretary at War the Vice-Treasurer moved the Lord Lieutenant for his Warrant directing issues from the Bank of Ireland, and His Excellency directed that sufficient sums should be placed to the credit of the Vice-Treasurer as Paymaster of the Military Establishment in Ireland. The Vice-Treasurer, by drafts on the Bank of Ireland, then paid the army agents and several individuals the respective sums authorised, taking their receipts for same and deducting fees as before, which, at the close of each quarter, were transferred at the Bank to credit of the Consolidated Fund.

Money was issued to the Barrack, Commissariat, and Ordnance Departments, under Warrants from their respective Boards addressed to the Vice-Treasurer, who then directed the Teller to transfer such sums from his account in the Bank of Ireland to the credit of the respective Boards, and each Board made its own payments.

Army Extraordinaries arising out of emergencies were issued in the usual way on the Warrant of the Lord Lieutenant addressed to the Vice-Treasurer: copies of these Warrants were immediately transmitted to the Treasury and Secretary at War for sanction, and such sanction was annexed to the Lord Lieutenant's Warrant.

After the 24th December, 1822, the Secretary at War executed the duties previously performed by the Commissioners of Military Accounts and the Muster Master-General, but the establishment of military accounts continued until 5th January, 1824, in order to clear away the arrears of accounts.

With reference to Parliamentary Grants for the Civil Service, issues were made to Public Boards, Hospitals, Schools, miscellaneous services and civil contingencies, in the usual way, on Warrants from the Lord Lieutenant addressed to the Vice-Treasurer.

Every order from the Vice-Treasurer to the Teller was accompanied by the Warrant or authority on which it was made; the Teller entered thereon the number and amount of his draft on the Bank, and the draft required the counter-signature of the Vice-Treasurer. The Teller retained the Vice-Treasurer's order as his voucher; but returned the original Warrant or authority on which the order was made.

This system entirely ceased in 1837, the Exchequer offices in Ireland were practically abolished, the revenue of Ireland became an integral portion of that of the United Kingdom subject to the regulations of the Lords of the Treasury, and Issues were made on Warrants from the Lords of the Treasury addressed to the Comptroller of the Exchequer. A Paymaster of Civil Services in Ireland was appointed for making payments in detail, imprest money being advanced to him from the English Exchequer, for that purpose, under Warrants from the Treasury. Army payments were made by transfers from the account of the Comptroller-General of the Exchequer to that of the Paymaster-General at the Bank of Ireland.

Receipt of Money.

The public revenue of Ireland consisted of—

- I. Hereditary Revenue,
- II. Additional Duties,
- III. Appropriated Duties;

but, with reference to the manner in which receipts were made and recorded, there was no difference between these classes of revenue.

Previous to 1794 they were received from the Collectors by the Vice-Treasurer, and he or his Deputy gave an acquittance which was entered by the Clerk of the Pells, the Chamberlains, and the Accountant-General; the acquittance was the discharge to the party making the payment. The money was received through the Cashier or Teller, who was a subordinate officer.

In 1794 the Teller became the executive officer of the new Treasury Board. He received no money without issuing a cheque receipt for it. This receipt was made out by the officer of the Auditor-General attending in his office, and was signed by him and witnessed by such officer and by the officer of the Clerk of the Pells. The Clerk of the Pells recorded the receipts, and was directed to furnish to the Auditor-General a daily account of the receipts into the Treasury.

There was a period of transition from January, 1794, to March, 1795, during which the Receiver-General and Paymaster-General, under directions from the Treasury Board, transacted business very much in the manner of the former Vice-Treasurers. In February, 1795, however, new regulations were made and instructions issued to the Receiver-General and Paymaster-General, Teller, Auditor, and Clerk of the Pells,

This system was established by law in June, 1795, when the post of Receiver-General and Paymaster-General was abolished, and a new officer entitled Receiver-General was appointed.

The Receiver-General received all duties, aids, revenues, and taxes collected by and levied under the authority of the Commissioners of Customs and Excise; and he paid weekly to the Teller of the Exchequer all monies received by him during the previous week, distinguishing under their proper heads the various receipts according to the Accountant-General's Abstracts.

The Teller was to give to him indented receipts for every such payment, which were to be recorded in the offices of the Auditor-General and Clerk of the Pells, and countersigned by both. Daily and weekly returns of receipts were to be sent by the Receiver-General to the Auditor-General, who was directed to record every receipt countersigned by him. A similar record was made by the Clerk of the Pells. Both were to examine weekly the Teller's accounts and issue certificates to the Lord Lieutenant and the Treasury Commissioners concerning the receipts, issues and remains. Half-yearly certificates were to be issued in like manner; and quarterly, half-yearly and yearly accounts, were to be sent by the Auditor (after having been approved of by him and them) to the Accountant-General.

The Accountant-General was directed to send weekly to the Lord Lieutenant and Treasury an abstract of the receipts, payments and balances, of the different revenue collectors; and similar abstracts were to be sent by the treasurers of the Board of Works and Barracks, Ordnance, Receiver-General of Stamps, and treasurer to the Post Office.

This system practically continued until the year 1814, when, instead of paying the sums received by him directly into the hands of the Teller, the Receiver-General paid them into the Bank of Ireland to the Teller's credit, and, on presenting the certificate received by him from the Bank, the Teller gave him an acquittance for the sum contained in the certificate: every such receipt or acquittance specified particulars, and was recorded and countersigned in the offices of the Auditor-General and Clerk of the Pells, as before. Money could only be received into the Exchequer in this way, and no acquittance could be valid except for money so received.

After 1822 it was again ordered that payments into the Exchequer, no matter of what kind, should be made into the Bank of Ireland to the credit of the Teller. The Cashier of the Bank gave a receipt to the party making the payment and debited the Bank for the amount in the Teller's account. The party then brought the receipt to the Teller, who prepared an Exchequer receipt, and it was not a complete acquittance to the party until countersigned by the Vice-Treasurer or his Deputy.

Every Exchequer receipt stated the amount and the account for which it was paid, was entered in the office of the Vice-Treasurer, and charged against the Teller. The account of the Bank for each week was furnished to the Vice-Treasurer.

This system of receipt practically continued until the abolition of the office of Vice-Treasurer in 1837.

Accounts and Check.

From the reign of Henry VIII. Commissioners were appointed from time to time by King's letter to examine and check the Accounts of the Vice-Treasurer, Board of Ordnance, and other great accounting Departments. The rolls of Finance Accounts as passed by these Commissioners, engrossed on parchment, extend from 1545 to 1822. The beginning of every account recites the Commission, and there is a certificate at the end signed by the Commissioners.

Previous to 1760 the Vice-Treasurer kept annual accounts as a rule, but from thence to 1794 he prepared and submitted to the Commissioners of Treasury Accounts, quarterly accounts of his receipts, issues, and the balance in his hand, together with the vouchers in support of same. The Commissioners, under their patents, were appointed to call for and examine these accounts, and, on being satisfied therewith, they signed them; but, before the accounts were fully discharged, they were liable to be reviewed by the Treasurer or Commissioners of the Treasury of Great Britain. Other accounts, such as those of the Board of Ordnance, Board of Works, and money advanced by Government by way of Imprest were formerly dealt with by the Commissioners of Treasury Accounts, but, at this period, the latter were subject to the Commissioners of Imprests and Foreign Accounts.

The Vice-Treasurer's accounts were first passed before the Auditor-General, and then before the Commissioners; his receipts were entered with the Clerk of the Pells, the Chamberlains, and the Accountant-General; his payments were entered with the Clerk of the Pells. The Vice-Treasurer delivered to the Auditor and Commissioners transcripts of his receipts, and similar transcripts were furnished by the Clerk of the Pells and the Chamberlains; and, when these were compared, they were a complete check on the accuracy of the Vice-Treasurer's transcripts, and showed whether he was fully charged with all monies received by him during the period of the account. The Vice-Treasurer also gave the Auditor-General a fair transcript of all his payments under the several heads of the establishment, with vouchers therefor, and a like account was given by the Clerk of the Pells; and when examined by the Auditor-General and engrossed on parchment, it was brought with the vouchers to the Commissioners of Accounts, who examined and signed it. This account remained with the Auditor-General, but a duplicate was given to the Vice-Treasurer as his "quietus est." The checks on the Vice-Treasurer's Accounts were thus quite complete; the books of the Clerk of the Pells and the Chamberlains were a check on his receipts, and not only was he obliged to furnish vouchers for his payments, but the Clerk of the Pells had an independent account of them. Furthermore, the authorities for his payments were in the hands of the Auditor-General and Commissioners of Accounts, and any payment made without proper authority was disallowed.

From 1794 under the newly appointed Treasury Board this system seems to have been maintained and continued until 1817, when the Irish Treasury was merged in the Imperial Treasury. Thenceforward the Vice-Treasurer was ordered to furnish an account of all Warrants which passed through his office during the year, and the same was laid before Parliament: like his predecessors, the Treasury Commissioners, he examined and signed the quarterly accounts of the receipts, issues, and remains of the Exchequer in Ireland, prepared by the Auditor, and transmitted abstracts of the same to the Treasury Board. He also furnished to the Commissioners of the Treasury, every week, a comparative view of the revenue paid into the Treasury, as formerly done by the Revenue Clerk of the Irish Treasury Board.

After the abolition of the Auditor-General's office, in 1822, all the accounts previously kept by him were kept and furnished by the Vice-Treasurer: he was directed—

(a) Weekly and quarterly to make an abstract of the receipts, issues, and remains in the Irish Treasury, to compare them with the Teller, and to transmit copies thereof, pursuant to the Treasury minute of the 23rd May, 1822;

(b) To prepare a quarterly account of the net produce of the Consolidated Fund paid into the Exchequer in Ireland, and the permanent charge thereon;

(c) To prepare an account of sums issued out of the growing produce of the Consolidated Fund arising in Ireland, for the public service in Ireland;

(d) To furnish particulars of Imprest money repaid into the Exchequer, and other monies received for the public; same to be transmitted within ten days after the expiration of each quarter;

(e) To prepare a quarterly account of the funded debt in Ireland, with the annual charge thereon, which was to be transmitted to the Commissioners for redeeming the National Debt;

(f) As soon as possible after each year ending the 5th January, to prepare and transmit to the Imperial Treasury, in triplicate, the following accounts, which were to be incorporated with the Finance Accounts of the United Kingdom:—

(1) An account, with appendices, of all sums paid into the Exchequer in Ireland on account of the public income;

(2) An account of the net produce of the Consolidated Fund paid into the Exchequer in Ireland, and the permanent charge thereon;

(3) An account of the public expenditure in Ireland, with appendices, and an account of the funded debt in Ireland, with the annual charge thereon;

(4) An account of the unfunded debt in Ireland and the demands outstanding, with appendices;

(5) An account showing how the grants for the Service of the year had been disposed of, distinguishing the various payments into proper heads;

(6) Accounts relating to the Treasury Department in Ireland, ordered by either House of Parliament.

He was also directed to take over from the Auditor-General and the Clerk of the Pells all the records and papers belonging to their departments.

Appended is a classified account of the classes of books and records of the Accounting Departments.

ABSTRACTS.

Abstracts were primarily kept to supply in a classified form compendious views of the receipts and payments into the Treasury; but after 1741 their main object seems to have been to serve as a check on the Vice-Treasurer.

Receipts, Abstracts of.

Auditor-General's Abstracts, 1795.—Weekly Abstracts of Receipts into the Treasury.

Vice-Treasurer's Abstracts, 1748--1797.—Weekly Abstracts of Receipts into the Treasury, 1748--1797. Also Biennial and Annual Abstracts, 1779--1795.

Receipts and Payments, Abstracts of.

Accountant-General's Abstracts, 1789-94.—These give weekly Abstracts of receipts into the Exchequer. They furnish the state of the various Collectors' Accounts, showing the balance from the former week, receipts and payments, and new balance; or in case a Collector's Account has been overdrawn by the Exchequer, they give the amount.

Auditor-General's Abstracts, 1795--1822.—These books give the receipts and payments into the Treasury in a classified form. They consist of—

Printed quarterly and yearly abstracts, ...	1795--9
Printed weekly abstracts, ...	1795--1818
Written " " ...	1796--1823
" daily " ...	1797

The abstracts described as written are generally entitled "rough abstracts," and the printed weekly abstracts are copies of the original abstracts which were forwarded weekly to the Treasury. In 1822 the office of Auditor-General was abolished, and his functions were afterwards discharged by the Vice-Treasurer.

Bank Abstracts.—These abstracts were furnished by the Bank of Ireland to the Treasury pursuant to order bearing date 8th February, 1794, and they give the state of the Teller's Weekly Account with the Bank. From 1794 to 1803 they merely give gross payments, receipts and balances, from thence to 1814 no abstracts were forwarded or they have not been preserved. Afterwards a new series of abstracts appears giving the names of the parties lodging money to the credit of the Teller.

First series, ...	1794--1803.
Second series, ...	1814--1837.

Board of Works Abstracts, 1805--11.—These are weekly abstracts kept by the Board of Works.

Ordnance Abstracts—see Military: Ordnance Accounts.

Pells Office Abstracts.—The Clerk of the Pells kept an account of the receipts and payments into the Treasury; and after 1795 he was directed in addition to his own account, to make up the Teller's accounts every Saturday, and to certify the receipts, issues, and remains into the Treasury every Monday. The Pells Office was abolished in 1822; but the Vice-Treasurer continued his functions, and the Vice-Treasurer's abstracts are accordingly treated as a continuation of the Pells abstracts after 1822.

Post Office Abstracts.—These were furnished pursuant to Treasury letter of the 31st December, 1793, and give weekly abstracts of Post Office receipts, payments to the Treasury, and balance; they extend from 1794–1817.

Receiver-General's Revenue Abstracts.—These were furnished pursuant to Treasury letter of 31st December, 1793. They show the state of the Collector's weekly accounts and whether a balance remained on hand or the account had been overdrawn. Previous to 1807 no distinction was made between Customs and Excise, but after this they appear with separate abstracts in the same volume. They extend as follows:—

Customs and Excise, 1797--1806	{	Customs, 1807--17.
		Excise, 1807--17.

There is another series extending from 1799--1800 kept for showing how much of the Collectors' balances consisted of specie and how much of notes, and when the balances consisted entirely or partly of notes the banks by which they were issued are given.

A third series of comparative abstracts extending from 1801--5, and 1809--35, gives an account of the revenue paid weekly into the Exchequer, together with that for the corresponding week in the previous year.

Stamp Office Abstracts.—These were furnished pursuant to Treasury letter of 31st Dec., 1793, and contain weekly abstracts by the Receiver-General of Stamps, payments thereout to the Treasury and balance. They extend from 1794--1815.

Teller's Abstracts.—These are weekly abstracts of receipts, issues, and remains. Up to 1799 they are written and detailed, but afterwards they are similar to and kept in the same printed forms as those of the Auditor-General. They consist of—

Weekly abstracts, written and printed,	...	1794--1837
„ „ rough, ... ..	...	1796--1837

and there are also two books of Teller's receipts for 1836--7.

Treasury Abstracts.—These are weekly abstracts prepared or kept in the Treasury Office, and give an account of the receipts, payments, and balance. They are similar to the Pells abstracts for the same period, and previous to 1795 were kept by the Vice-Treasurer. They consist of—

Weekly abstracts, ...	1693--1795 (a few books are missing)
Quarterly abstracts, ..	1707--1751.

CASH BOOKS.

These are very important, and include four series—Counter Cash Books, Deputy Receiver-General's, Teller's, and Treasury Cash Books.

Counter Cash Books, 1727--1837.—These seem to have served as actual receipt books up to 1800, and they contain receipts and payments of every kind made by the Cashier in the Treasury, together with the signature of the recipients up to that date.

The accounts are balanced weekly, and although the receipts and payments sometimes differ from the receipts and payments in the Treasury Cash Books the weekly balances are always the same, for the reason stated in the paragraph on the Treasury Cash Books.

The books are kept in order of date, and the items are entered promiscuously. They only contain receipts and payments made by Teller, and the books were prepared by his clerk. To understand the importance and character of these transactions see account of payments and receipts under Payment and Receipt Books, Treasury. Some books are missing.

Deputy Receiver-General's Cash Books, 1779--1785.—These contain transactions of the Deputy Receiver-General with reference to Bills received from Revenue Collectors, Agency to Pensioners on the Civil and Military Establishment, &c.

Teller's Cash Books, 1733--68, 1777--94.—At first the Teller would seem to have been a very subordinate officer with very limited powers, practically a mere Cashier. After 1794, while the Deputy Receiver-General was still nominally responsible, most of the duties practically devolved on the Teller, and the entries of his receipts and payments appear in the Counter Cash Book.

These books extend from 1733 to 1768, and from 1777 to 1794, and contain his receipts and payments. The Treasury was debited for his receipts and credited for his payments.

There are some other transactions with which the Teller had no official concern, and the books seem to have been kept to show how he stood personally with reference to the Treasury and other Government accounts.

Treasury Cash Books, 1689--1795.—These contain entries of every receipt and payment by the Treasury in respect of the public service and revenue. The accounts are kept weekly, and the balances are always the same as in the Counter Cash Books. Several receipts and payments were made without the instrumentality of the Teller, but as receipts for such purposes, e.g., forage, were immediately paid away, the weekly balance was not affected.

The accounts are classified, receipts and payments being entered under the proper heads of the accounts. They show the deductions for infirmity, poundage, hospitals, Pells. The earlier books show whether a payment was made by acquittance on a revenue collector or by cash at the Counter of the Exchequer. There is a column showing the page of ledger in which the item is entered, and a corresponding column in ledger shows the page of the cash book the entry was posted from. They cease in 1795, and, from that date, the ledgers refer to the page of the issue payment books. The series is very valuable as furnishing a record of the receipts and payments.

After 1757 there are two books for every year, each book containing the accounts for alternate weeks. Some books are missing at the beginning of the series, as well as those for the years 1757--8 and 1759--60.

CHAMBERLAINS, FIRST AND SECOND.—See Receipt Books, Treasury Receipts.

CIVIL CONTINGENCY ACCOUNT, 1802--3.

These books give the payments for civil contingencies, stating name of party, service, and amount paid. There is a rough duplicate for 1802.

CIVIL AND MILITARY ESTABLISHMENTS, 1577--1831.

These contain compendious accounts of the various heads of the public service in classified form, together with the public expenditure to be incurred in respect of the same. They are copies of King's letters, which were the authority for issues. The letters were sent to the Auditor-General, and as he supplied a copy to the Vice-Treasurer, this set probably consists of such copies. This series is imperfect.

CIVIL LIST BOOKS.

Civil List, 1691--1834.—These books contain classified lists of the various persons on the Civil Establishment. They give number, date of King's letter, letters patent, or Government warrant, term, employment, officer's name, salary and quarterly payments. Series nearly perfect.

Digest of Civil List, 1577--1781.—This gives the heads and yearly cost of the Establishment, comparative lists for different years, and an estimate of the charge, addition to, or savings on the same for successive periods of two years.

Payments on Civil List, 1777--1807.—Series imperfect.

Pensions on Civil List.—Return of payments of, 1753--1829.

Pensions on the Civil List, 1830--7.—These books contain in day-book form the payment of Civil List pensions by the Teller of the Exchequer, together with sums received from the British Exchequer to pay the same. Other books run from 1830 to 1833.

Savings on the Civil List, 1802--4, 1794--1809.

State of the Civil List, 1818.

CONSOLIDATED FUND (IRELAND) BOOKS.

Abstracts.

These give abstracts of life annuities payable in London which were chargeable on the consolidated fund, and comprise the years 1812--27.

Advances from Consolidated Fund.

Advances for Clergy, 1832--3.—These are advances from the consolidated fund for the relief of Clergy pursuant to the Act 2 Will. IV., c. 41. They give date of advance, name of incumbent, parish, diocese, page of Journal, and amount advanced.

Advances for Mail Coach Roads, &c.—These give the advances for mail coach and turnpike roads pursuant to 45 Geo. III., c. 43.

The accounts are kept in order of counties, and extend over the period 1813--34.

Advances for Roads.—These books contain in order of counties the sums ordered by the Government to be paid. They give the amount, date of issue, mode of paying instalments, with the amount and date of payment to the different revenue collectors. They extend over the period 1810--19.

Journal of Advances.—These give properly classified weekly accounts of payments made from the Consolidated Fund for carrying on public works in Ireland pursuant to various Acts of Parliament, police purposes, Boards of Health, Tithe Commissioners, County Treasurers, principal and interest of Exchequer Bills, &c., &c. They extend over the period 1834--7.

Ledger of Advances, 1833--7.—The accounts in the Journal for the period 1833--7 are put into ledger form in these books. These are really part of Civil, &c., Ledgers.

Repayments of Advances, 1835--7.—Advances from the Consolidated Fund for expenses under the Tithe (Million) Act, 3 and 4 Wm. IV., c. 100, and repayments thereof.

Irish Consolidated Fund Books.

Charges on the Consolidated Fund, Ireland, 1830--7.

Duties and Revenue comprising the Consolidated Fund in Great Britain and Ireland with the respective charges thereon.

Great Britain and Ireland, 1817. Ireland, 1817--36.

Issues, &c., 1815--36.

(1st.) Quarterly issues from the growing produce of the Consolidated Fund in Ireland, distinguishing payments on account of Parliamentary grants in previous years.

(2nd.) Like accounts of Imprest and other monies received during same period.

(3rd.) Net produce of the fund in Ireland and the permanent charge thereon. After 1834 they only contain the permanent charge.

Journal, 1835--7.—A rough journal of issues.

Warrant Entry Book, 1819--20, 1832--5.

CONSTABULARY ACCOUNTS.

These give the amount advanced yearly from the Exchequer for the Constabulary, the amount chargeable on county, presented for by the Clerk of the Crown, levied by County Treasurer, and repaid by Excise Collector. They comprise the period 1822--1833.

There are like accounts for Peace Preservation, Superannuated Constables, &c., for the years 1816--34. See Salaries.

ECCLESIASTICAL REVENUE.

The dissolution of the monasteries in the time of Henry VIII. furnished considerable revenue to him and his immediate successors. The chattels, lands and possessions of the monasteries were vested in the Crown, and provision was made for some of the religious.

"First fruits," or "annates," were also vested in Henry VIII. They are the first year's profit of every ecclesiastical benefice or promotion payable by four instalments in two years. If default were made in the payment to the Clerk of First Fruits process issued as in case of Crown lands.

The fees payable on faculties or dispensations were included in sources of ecclesiastical revenues vested in Henry VIII. and his successors. The fees on faculties were apportioned between the Crown and the Dignitaries and officers employed in their collection.

"Twentieth parts," being the twentieth part of every year's value of a benefice or preferment, were vested in the Crown in like manner as the First Fruits.

The chattels of the monasteries were sold; and the lands, pending their grant, were let on lease.

A valuation of all benefices for the purpose of assessing the First Fruits and Twentieth Parts, was made by Commission 30 Hen. VIII. The record of this valuation is called "Valor beneficiorum." They yielded revenue until the Twentieth Parts were released to the incumbents by Queen Anne, confirmed by statute 2 Geo. I., c. 15; and the First Fruits by the same authorities were granted to trustees for the building of churches and purchase of glebes, and impropriations.

In the Commonwealth period various ecclesiastical lands, rents and revenues were appropriated by the Government.

Commonwealth Period.

Bishops' Lands.—This volume gives the lands of the various sees, with the tenants and rents.

Bishops' Lands: Connaught.—Account of lands belonging to bishoprics and other ecclesiastical lands taken from Composition Book, Queen Elizabeth's reign.

ESTABLISHMENT.—See Civil and Military Establishment.

FEES.

These books give an account of fees received on weekly payments in the Treasury. It is possible that the early books answered the purpose of Counter Cash Books also.

One series kept by the Auditor-General begins in 1691 and ends in 1837, the latter portion being kept by the Vice-Treasurer, who succeeded to duties of Auditor-General in 1822. The series is imperfect, and there is another series kept by the Clerk of the Pells commencing in 1707 and ending in 1726.

FINES.

These Rolls contain original Estreats of Fines, Amercements, forfeited recognizances, &c., sent from the different sessions to the Exchequer, so that process might issue to levy the amounts coming therefrom to the Crown.

Petty Constables and Jurors are fined for not attending sessions; tradesmen, chiefly millers and victuallers, for not bringing in their weights and measures on demand, or for excessive tolls; inhabitants of baronies and parishes for not mending bridges, making highways and other works passed as presentments; some homage fines are included. Writs to Sheriffs are sometimes copied when the person fined belonged to a superior class.

They supply the names and addresses of many persons throughout Ireland, chiefly during the period 1619--20.

GRANTS UNISSUED.

This contains returns of unappropriated money for the years 1817--20.

HANAPER OFFICE.

Profits accrued to the Crown from the sums paid on sealing writs, Letters patent of lands or offices, pardons, Court of Wards and Liveries, and King's Lands.

The Lord Chancellor for the time being from 5 James I., was entitled to a moiety of the receipts, and had power to order out of the other moiety, any disbursements he thought necessary for the use of the Chancery Court. The balance was paid into the Exchequer.

In passing his account before the Commissioners of Imprest Accounts the Clerk of the Hanaper produced the Office entry book showing all receipts which he verified on oath. This was his charge. The discharge consisted of the Lord Chancellor's receipt for moiety, warrants for disbursements, and Exchequer acquittances for payments into the Treasury.

Accounts, 1570--1711.—These are the audited engrossed accounts of the Hanaper Office, and give receipts, issues, and balances of the accounts. These entries are summaries of the receipts, &c. Full entries of receipts appear in the Receipt Rolls.

Receipt Rolls, 1548--1718.—These give full particulars of the receipts. From 1548 to 1568 these rolls have the accounts of receipts for First Fruits, Twentieth parts, and Subsidies. The roll for 1568--70 has Hanaper Accounts, Customs, and Subsidies. There is a Roll of M. 1628, which gives the receipts of the Clerk of the Crown, King's Bench.

HEARTH MONEY, POLL TAX, AND SUBSIDY ROLLS.

Hearth Money was a tax of 2s. on every hearth and fire place, established by the Act 14 and 15 Car. II., c. 17, and payable at Lady Day and Michaelmas by equal portions. The first portion was payable on Lady Day 1663, and it was to be collected in the different counties by the sheriffs.

The persons liable to pay were to be entered in a list which was to be prepared by the Justices of the Peace, and lodged with the Clerk of the Peace; and a duplicate thereof, signed by three Justices, was to be sent to the Exchequer. These lists are known as the Hearth Money Rolls.

Returns of any increase or diminution of hearths were to be sent to the Exchequer as in case of the original return.

By 17 & 18 Car. II., c. 18, the entire sum became payable on the 10th January, yearly.

The rolls contain, according to counties, baronies, parishes, &c., the names of the inhabitants liable to the tax, and the amounts they were to pay. So far as the number of hearths with which each person is charged can be taken as an indication of wealth and rank, these lists are a valuable addition to local and family history.

The Poll Tax with which the lists in this collection deals was established by the Act 7 Wm. III., c. 15, and was a duty of one shilling on every person, no matter of what age or sex. However, no person chargeable with one shilling only was obliged to pay for more than two children under the age of sixteen.

The clergy, from archbishops to parsons, and the laity from dukes to gentlemen, officials and traders, were liable to heavy amounts according to their degree.

The Commissioners appointed for each county were to cause duplicates of the whole sums charged on every hundred, barony, ward, &c. (without naming the persons), under the hands of three of them, to be delivered to the sheriff of the county, who was to transmit it to the Exchequer before 20th Jan., 1695-6. These are the lists in this collection.

Subsidies were grants made to the King from a very early date; but, with the exception of Co. Armagh, Dublin City, and a few concerning all Ireland, the rolls preserved all relate to the period from 1662 to 1669. Subsidies, both lay and clerical, were granted by the Parliament which commenced to sit in Dublin on the 8th May, 1661.

By the Act 14 and 15 Chas. II., c. 24, the clergy granted eight subsidies, at the rate in the Act, payable half-yearly, the first payment on Feb. 1661-2, and the last on Aug., 1669. There are no clerical subsidy rolls in this collection, but as the tax to be raised was very much like that of Twentieth parts the corresponding particulars can be found on looking at the Twentieth parts records. The lay subsidies are as follows:—

A grant of eight subsidies, payable in 1662-3, must have been made at same time with the subsidy of the clergy, but the Act does not appear to have been preserved. By the Act 14 and 15 Chas. II., c. 6, four subsidies, payable quarterly, were voted to commence after the payment of the eight subsidies, that is to be payable in 1664.

By the Act 14 and 15 Chas. II., c. 7, eight subsidies were voted, payable half-yearly, the first payment on Midsummer, 1665, and the last on Christmas, 1668. Four subsidies granted in 1665 by the Act 17 and 18 Chas. II., c. 1, were to be levied in addition to, in the same way, and at same times, as the previous eight subsidies under 14 and 15 Chas. II., c. 7.

These lay subsidies were to be levied off temporalities, lands and goods. Commissioners were appointed to deliver detailed lists of persons taxed to the sheriffs, &c., who were to collect the subsidies, and they were to return gross amounts into the Exchequer as a check on the Collectors' accounts.

46 APPENDIX TO THIRTY-THIRD REPORT OF THE DEPUTY

The Commissioners, in obedience to writs from the Exchequer, returned copies of the lists supplied to the sheriffs, and these are the records now styled Subsidy Rolls. See also Hanaper Office Receipts.

of issue. The column "Order of Lords of Treasury" gives number of application and date of order as they appear in the diary of applications. The number and date of issue appear in the warrant books.

Numerical Register, 1833-7.—This is a register of payments to land forces, militia, general officers, garrisons, &c., and merely contains number of order and amount. See Issue Books (Military, Paymaster-General).

Warrant Books, 1794-1822.—These give the particulars of the orders or warrants on which the payments were made. They state in whose favour the order was made, account, net and gross amount, authority for issue, number, fund, signatures, and date of delivery to auditor.

The number is the same as that in the Memorandum Books, and the authority column gives the particulars, date, &c., of warrant. They are classified as follows:—

Civil, Military, Vote of Credit, &c., 1794-6	{ Civil, 1796-1807 Vote of Credit, 1796-1807 Military, 1796-1822.	} Civil and Vote of Credit, 1808-20.

There is a rough book of Concordatum Warrants for 1796 among "Rough Books."

LEDGERS.

There are a great many classes of ledgers, and the information they supply is extensive and most important.

District Yeomanry Corps, 1797-1802.—Separate ledgers were kept for the various district yeomanry corps during period of these ledgers, and they refer to the Issue Book authorising the payments therein.

Grants and Issues, 1804-37.—These give classified accounts, civil and military, of all issues from the Treasury, under the heads under which they ought to be accounted for. An account is opened for every grant; on the Dr. side appear the payments posted from the day books, and on the Cr. side the amount of the grant. They thus show the amount of a grant unissued without having to refer to the Auditor-General.

Some of the details are very meagre; for example, one order may contain the entire amount for salaries on Civil List for one quarter. From 1802-22 they have a column referring to Warrant Book for authority for payment.

Pay, Salary, and Allowance, 1804-16.—These books were kept in the Treasury, and contain personal accounts of the principal officers, whose accounts are also given in the Military (and Civil Grants) Ledgers up to 1822; and the series is continued as Grant Ledger, Paymaster-General's Office. The items are entered in a confused form, but the date of payment, amount, and title of account are given.

Paymaster-General's Office.—There were three kinds of ledgers kept in the Paymaster-General's Office, viz.:—

1st. General and Staff Officers, Garrisons, &c., 1823-36.—These books have columns referring to number in numerical register of accounts and page of Military (Paymaster-General) Issue Book.

2nd. Grant Ledger.—These contain personal accounts which were kept in the Pay, Salary and Allowance, and Military Ledgers, previous to 1823, when the Civil and Military Ledgers were amalgamated. Personal accounts, instead of being kept in the amalgamated ledger, as formerly, were now kept in this series. They give date of payment, number of warrant, and reference to Paymaster's Military Issue Book. They extend from 1823 to 1836.

3rd. Paymaster-General's, 1823.—This gives the account of the Secretary-at-War with the Vice-Treasurer, who was Paymaster-General of the forces. On the Dr. side appear payments by the Bank of Ireland for military purposes, and on the Cr. side warrants from the Lord Lieutenant to the Teller.

Regimental Ledger, 1823--36.—These contain, on the Dr. side, date of payment, number of warrant, service, reference to Paymaster's military issue book, and the amount. On the Cr. side appear net expenditure, together with any sums repaid by army agents pursuant to the clearing warrants of the Secretary-at-War.

The accounts were kept for the army agents in respect of individual regiments, and they extend from 1823 to 1836.

Treasury Ledgers, 1693--1836.—These volumes are sometimes styled Treasury Ledgers and sometimes Exchequer Ledgers. Up to 1729 they contain in classified form accounts of all receipts and payments made in the Treasury on the Civil and Military Establishments, Concordatum, and for secret or exceptional services; but from that date they only give the payments.

The books are most valuable, furnishing an account of the salaries attached to the various departments, together with the names and rank of the principal officials. The series, except the early portion, is complete. There is a column referring to the page of Treasury Cash Book for original entry of payment. After Issue Books were started the reference is made to them and not to the Cash Books.

In some years, when accounts were very large, other ledgers, which are really portions of these ledgers, were kept. These are Consolidated Fund, District Corps, Paymaster-General's, and Vote of Credit Ledgers.

To explain the nature of the entries more fully, I give a list of the ledger accounts for the year 1793.

Civil List.	Exchequer, King's Bench, Chancery, Common Pleas, State Officers, Incidents, Custom Officers, Perpetuities, Appeals, Nonconforming Ministers, Commissioners and Overseers of Barracks, Admiralty, Commissioners of Imprest Accounts, Pensions, French Pensions, Concordatum.
Military Establishment.	General Officers. Army. { Subsistence, Clothing, Arrears, Half-yearly Allowances, Contingencies and Allowance in lieu of Stoppages.
	Additional pay for Dublin duty, Battle axes, Garrisons, Incidents, Fire and Candles for Guards and Garrisons, Pensions, Half-pay Officers, Widows of Officers, Ordnance Contingencies, Barracks.
Extraordinaries.	King's Letters, Parliamentary Grants including Lottery Prizes, Bounty to Linen Manufacture, Further Bounty to Linen Manufacture, Premiums on Flaxseed.
	Prizage, and Commissioners of Public Accounts.
Appropriated Funds.	The various sub-heads of the Loan Account, Linen Manufacture, Lagan Navigation, Improving Dublin, and Duncannon Fort.

For other years the accounts would be different, and as a rule the accounts become more numerous for more recent years.

The accounts, Civil and Military, were kept in one series up to the year 1796, from this period to 1823 they were kept in two series, and from 1823 to 1836 the series is again united. Consolidated Fund, District Corps, Paymaster-General's, and Vote of Credit Ledgers were also kept for certain periods. They are, practically, other sub-divisions of these Ledgers.

With reference to Military Ledgers from 1804 to 1811, they are entitled "Military and Civil Grants," the first part of each volume serving as a Military Ledger, while the latter contains the Annual Grants, which are entered for this period in the Military instead of the Civil Ledger. They may be thus described:—

Civil and Military,	...	...	...	1693--1796
Civil, ...	...	...	...	1796--1822
Military, ...	...	...	...	1796--1822

LETTERS AND LETTER BOOKS.

This collection comprises original letters, as well as Letter Books, into which the letters have been copied.

LETTERS.

Original letters may be classed as—Letters to Treasury from Board of Works; Lord Lieutenant; Sundry Persons (Bank, Loans, &c., Revenue). Also Letters from Treasury to Auditor-General; and to Teller of the Exchequer.

Letters from Board of Works to Treasury, 1835--7.—These letters state that certificates have been forwarded to Secretaries of Grand Juries for sums expended on Mail Coach Roads that are leviable by County Treasurers, and are repayable into the Exchequer through the Collectors of Excise.

Letters from Government to Treasury, 1794--5.—These are warrants for payments of Loans, Lotteries, &c., forwarding Civil Lists, and giving various directions with reference to accounts, and calling in balances from various departments.

Letters from Sundry Persons to Treasury.

1st. Bank and Board of Control Business, 1794--7.—These are from the Bank of Ireland and the various accounting departments forwarding accounts, reports, or explanations. Generally, this collection may be said to comprise all matters concerning revenue and accounts which were dealt with by the Treasury acting as a Board of Control.

2nd. Loans, &c., 1795--8.—These deal with questions affecting Loans, Lotteries, and Annuities, whether in Dublin or London.

3rd. Revenue, 1795 and 1797.—Letters on Revenue matters.

Letters from Treasury to Auditor-General, 1796--1801.—These are the original orders for payment received by the Auditor-General, and notified by him to the Teller of the Exchequer.

Letters from Treasury to Teller of the Exchequer, 1794--1801.—These are the letters with reference to the receipt and payment of money forwarded to the Teller.

LETTER BOOKS.

These comprise copies of letters from Treasury to Auditor-General; Chief Secretary; Commissioners of Customs, of Excise, and of Stamps; County Treasurers; Postmaster-General; Secretary-at-War; Sundry Persons; Teller of the Exchequer.

Copies of letters to Treasury from Auditor-General; Chief Secretary; Commissioners of Customs, of Excise, and of Stamps; Secretary-at-War; Sundry Persons.

Auditor-General from Treasury.—There are three series of Letter Books of this class.

1st. Letters of a purely departmental nature, extending over the years 1795 to 1822.

2nd. When the Treasury Board was abolished in 1817 some of its functions devolved on the newly-created Vice-Treasurer, and on the abolition of the office of Auditor-General in 1822 the Vice-Treasurer's duties were further increased. These letters chiefly refer to military payments and accounts previously dealt with by the Treasury Board and Auditor-General, and they extend over the years 1817--37.

3rd. This series deals with letters and memorials referred to the Auditor-General while such office existed, and subsequently to the Vice-Treasurer, together with the reports thereon. It also contains returns and certificates furnished to the Government and various offices. The books extend over the years 1797--1825.

Chief Secretary from Treasury, 1805--17.—These letters deal with applications to the Lord Lieutenant for payments, notifications of removals from the Establishment, repayments and returns.

Commissioners of Customs from Treasury, 1805--17.

Commissioners of Excise from Treasury, 1805--17.

Commissioners of Revenue, &c., from Treasury, 1796--1817.—These deal with memorials to the Treasury for reduction of penalties, money in the hands of dismissed collectors or due of deceased collectors, orders to furnish accounts to the Treasury and Commissioners of Accounts, and directions to the Receiver-General and Teller with reference to money in the hands of collectors.

Commissioners of Stamps from Treasury, 1805--17.

County Treasurers from Treasury, 1806--10.

Postmaster-General from Treasury, 1805--17.

The six last mentioned classes of letter books are of a purely departmental character.

Secretary-at-War from Treasury, 1822--36.—This series gives copies of letters from the Vice-Treasurer, acting as Paymaster-General, to the Secretary-at-War.

Sundry Persons from Treasury, 1793--1817.—This series, extending from 1793 to 1817, contains copies of letters from the Treasury as a Board of control with reference to Banks, Bills, Loans, Lotteries, &c. It contains directions to the Auditor-General, Teller, Clerk of the Pells, and various subordinate boards with reference to keeping and furnishing accounts, preparing warrants, paying or receiving money, and furnishing explanations or returns. After 1804 the series splits up into two series, one being chiefly devoted to Accounts and the other to Banks.

From Auditor-General and Chief Secretary to Treasury.—See "Letter Books from Treasury," which contain the entire correspondence between the three departments.

From Commissioners of Customs, 1804--8.

From Commissioners of Excise, 1804--7.

From Commissioners of Stamps, 1804--13.

From County Treasurers, 1804--8.

The four classes of letter books last mentioned deal with matters of a purely departmental character.

From Secretary-at-War, 1822--36.—These contain copies of letters from the Secretary-at-War, or his department, to the Vice-Treasurer, as Paymaster-General of the Forces.

From Sundry Persons (Revenue).—These contain copies of memorials on revenue matters forwarded by various persons to the Treasury from 1804 to 1808.

MERCER'S HOSPITAL.

Quarterly accounts of expenditure from 1805 to 1821.

MILITARY.

There is a vast quantity of books dealing with military accounts. Primarily these books were kept to account for money spent on the army or military purposes, but incidentally and indirectly they supply information concerning the regiments on the Irish Military Establishment, particulars with regard to officers and men where special payments were made, movements of troops, and generally everything concerning the financial aspect of the army. Containing a great many names, and connected incidentally with a great many events, they throw some light on family and general history.

The principal military accounts are kept with the corresponding Civil Accounts, vide Civil and Military Ledgers, Payment and Receipt Books and Rolls, Cash Books, &c. Other volumes, although dealing exclusively with military matters, are classed with the corresponding Civil Books; vide Issue Books, Ledgers, Letter Books, &c. The principal military accounts are to be found in these.

The following are of a more subsidiary nature, and give, in many cases, details of these principal accounts, or were kept for the purpose of arriving at them. Others were kept in order to give special information concerning some of the accounts:—

Accounts, 1803--12.—Instructions to Comptroller Army Accounts, and for contingent Accounts of Staff Officers.

Accounts, 1824--36.—Account of the Paymaster-General of the Forces during above period.

Army Extraordinaries, 1801--15.—These books give the payments for the above purposes during a period extending over the greater part of the Napoleonic wars, and show a good portion of the monies laid out in preparation against a French invasion.

Artillery.

Pay lists, 1790--9.

Paymaster T. Burgh, 1789--94.—Account of Paymaster Royal Irish Artillery.

Recruiting Accounts, 1798--1801.

Baggage.

Account of expenses in connection with army baggage, 1796--1822.

Barracks.

Accounts, 1789--1810.—These give barrack accounts for above period.

Regulations, 1789, 1811, 1814.—Regulations concerning barracks.

Clearing Certificates, 1825--36.

Letters from the War Office, London, informing the Paymaster-General that army agents will be instructed to receive the sums due to them from the public, and that certificates with reference to same have been forwarded.

Clearing Warrants, 1822--8.

Letters from War Office to inform Paymaster-General that army agents have been directed to repay the balances due by them to the public.

Clothing.

Clothing Certificates, 1743--1820.—Amounts certified for clothing in lieu of offreckonings. These include the corresponding Militia certificates from 1795.

Clothing Warrants, 1774--1821.—Warrants to pay the clothing contractors the sums due and certified in lieu of clothing.

There is generally an assignment of same by the contractor to the regimental agent.

Offreckonings.—Abstracts, Calculations, Certificates, and Accounts, 1795--1823.—These volumes are kept in a confused way. The calculations have reference to finding the sums to be inserted in the warrants, and the certificates give the amounts certified by Clerk of Offreckonings to be due to various regiments.

Offreckonings Ledger, 1807--22.—These contain contract warrant or assignment, colonel's name, date and period, period for payment, and agents' names. Accounts are kept as follows:—Army, 1807--22; Militia, 1808--16.

Commissary-General, 1580--1796.

These are very interesting accounts concerning contractors, commissaries, providers and surveyors of victuals and stores for the army in the several places in which it was quartered during the years 1580--1609, 1647--57, and 1689--1696. Several books are missing.

Debentures Pelled, 1726--30.

These extend from 1726 to 1730, and contain account of debentures issued to regiments and half-pay officers, receipts for the amounts, and fees deducted in Pells Office.

Accounts (Pells Office), 1799--1800, and 1814--15.

Accounts, Rough, 1797--1801.

Agents, Index to, 1801--1802.

Calculation Book, 1811--13.

Cash Books, 1797--1802.—These are kept like Counter Cash Books, and give weekly sums issued to agents, probably by way of imprest, with their signatures for same.

The books extend over the years 1797 to 1802, and are combined cash and receipt books.

Clothing, 1797.—Account of clothing of District Yeomanry Corps.

Issue Books, see Issue Books (general).

Ledgers, see Ledgers (general).

Letter Book, 1797--8.—Treasury letters to Auditor-General re district corps.

Letters of Attorney, 1797--9.

Carlou Buffs, Company Book, 1794--5.

Draft Books, Paymaster-General's Office, 1822--36.

These give the paymaster's account with the Bank of Ireland: he is credited for money lodged by the Teller for military purposes, and debited for payments on his own drafts for military purposes.

The drafts are numbered consecutively, and the lodgments also, but blanks often occur in the latter on account of some of the lodgments not being for military purposes.

Establishment and Precedents.

Account of the military establishment for the years 1682--5, 1691--2, 1715, 1721, and 1728, with precedents to be adopted in military accounts and miscellaneous matters.

The last volume contains instructions to the Clerk of the Wool Accounts of exports for the year 1734.—See also Civil and Military Establishment.

Imprest Payments, 1794--1813.

Money advanced on imprest for army and navy, &c.

Leave Approbations, 1751--2.

Copies of letters from commanding officers requesting the Lord Lieutenant's warrant to grant leave of absence to their officers, and the orders thereon.

Original King's letters and warrants for the years 1793--4 appointing treasurers, and concerning payments on the Military Establishment.

Medicaments, 1801--16.

Account of medicaments furnished to the army by the Apothecaries Hall, Dublin.

Officers.

Appointments, 1795--1820.

Commissions, 1735--1832.—Copies or abstracts of military commissions, together with lists of staff and commissioned officers in the various regiments.

Leave, see Leave Approbations.

Names, Index to, 1820--30.

Notifications, 1795--1815.—Account of soldiers placed on the establishment, and of officers appointed or discontinued, during the years 1795--1801, and 1806--15.—See pay, salary, and allowance ledger.

Officers' Widows.

Assignments, 1720--48.—These contain entries of assignments, powers of attorney, and administrations from 1720 to 1748. One volume contains a list of officers' widows, 1733--49.

British Establishment, 1734--6.—Widows of officers transferred to British Establishment.

Certificates, 1745--51.—Certificates that widows were alive and unmarried.

Demands, 1733--57.—Entries of demands by officers' widows.

There are also rough books for 1752--7.

Establishment.—Establishments for the years 1710--33, 1715--17, 1724--5, 1727, 1794--5, with orders and instructions concerning the same.

Ledger, 1710--18.

Letter Book, 1722--30.

Lists, 1733--57, 1749, 1757--9, and 1811--14.—Lists of widows to whom quarterly pensions were due, together with petitions and warrants for payment of the same.

Memorials, &c., 1739--49.—Copies of memorials, precedents, reports, warrants, and accounts of officers' widows, together with establishment letters and regulations.

Receipt Books (general), 1716--27, 1725--59; (pensions payable in Great Britain), 1725--33; (pensions payable in Dublin and London), 1733--59.

Warrants, 1719--58.—Warrants of admission, sometimes containing memorials, references, and reports as to the admission of widows.

Ordnance.

There are two periods covered by the Ordnance Accounts, one commencing in 1567 and ending in 1721, and the other commencing in 1759.

FIRST PERIOD.

Accounts, 1571--1710.—Accounts of the masters of the Ordnance 1571--1634, and of the Master-General, 1698--1710.

Fortifications and Works.—These are particular accounts of sums expended by clerks general or overseers of works in respect of castles, manors, forts, courts of justice, Dublin Castle, &c. There are also accounts in respect of special works.

Special Fortifications and Works.

Arran Islands, 1652--3.—Account of Captain Thomas Graham for building the fort of Arkin.

MINUTE BOOKS.

These are of three kinds:—

1st. Minutes of the proceedings of the Lords Justices, and fees received by the Privy Council for the year 1696.

2nd. Minute Book of the English Treasury Board dealing with purely English affairs during the years 1787--8, probably procured to serve as a precedent.

3rd. Minutes of the Treasury Board, which was constituted in 1793 to superintend and control the public revenue and accounts. This important series extends from 1793 to 1817, and contains entries with reference to the receipt and issue of money; accounts, reports, and returns by public departments; everything relating to Loans, Lotteries, Bills, Fines, Seizures, &c.

NATIONAL DEBT.

The books dealing with this subject supply most important information towards explaining the development and history of the country.

At first every country has to meet expenditure out of receipts. Both increase as the country progresses, but expenditure has a general tendency to exceed receipts, and this tendency has to be met by some system of borrowing in aid of the ordinary taxes. In order to meet expenses connected with war, or very useful and exceptional public works or outlay, it is considered better and more convenient to provide for such charges by borrowing, instead of raising excessive taxes to defray the whole charge at once.

Pledging or farming portions of the public revenue, temporary Loans, Annuities and State Lotteries were resorted to as the means for raising money on the national credit; but, when the public debt had thus considerably grown while the national credit had in no way deteriorated, it was found necessary to fund a portion of the debt, and a national debt of a more permanent character was established.

Not only do the books give full information concerning these loans of a permanent nature, but they contain full particulars of Treasury or Exchequer Bills, debentures, &c., issued under authority of votes of credit, &c., to meet demands for public money in anticipation of the taxes.

They record the amounts of loans, rates of interest, terms given to borrowers, &c., and thus tell at a glance the state of the national credit. To the historian of special industries, or trade in general, they are of the utmost importance. The expenditure of every great event can be obtained from them in conjunction with the other account books. For example, in order to estimate the effect of the French Revolutionary wars and the disturbed state of the country which followed, these books will show that in the end of 1793 the total amount of the funded debt of Ireland was, in round numbers, £1,600,000, while at the close of 1816 the funded debt of Ireland amounted to £100,700,000, in round numbers, of which £86,400,000 was funded in England, and £24,300,000 in Ireland.

They show expenditure in connection with peace as well as war; and the amounts borrowed to execute public works, whether by the Irish or the Imperial Parliament, are fully set out.

They may be divided into—

- 1st. Books concerning the debt.
- 2nd. „ „ „ Loans, &c., comprising it.

1st.—National Debt Books.

Account Book, 1761--1817.—An account of the commencement, progress and amount of the National Debt of Ireland from 1761--1817, when the Irish debt was merged in that of England. It gives the nature of the different securities granted, and the interest paid; an account of the Sinking Fund, and an annual abstract of Debt, Interest, and Sinking Fund. The abstract only runs from 1792 to 1817.

Debt and Revenue Account Book, 1760--99.—Account of the growth of the National Debt, debentures issued, when interest commenced, date of issue, and for what purpose.

Like accounts are furnished with regard to Bank Annuities, Life Annuities, Long Annuities, Short Annuities, and Treasury Bills.

2nd.—National Debt, Loan, &c., Books.Bank Annuities.

The Bank of Ireland in 1781 subscribed £600,000 on Loan Debentures at 4 per cent., subsequently converted into £600,000 Bank Stock at an annuity of £24,000, from Midsummer, 1783. The rate was raised to 5 per cent. in 1797, in which year and in 1808 loans of £500,000 and £1,250,000 at 5 per cent. were made. A further loan of £500,000 at 4 per cent. was made in 1821. The details of the payments of interest are to be found in the cash books, ledgers, &c.

Life Annuity Books.

Life Annuities were granted to subscribers pursuant to Acts passed in 1773, 1775, 1777.

Annuities amounting to £15,900 were granted under the Act of 1773 to the various subscribers.

Annuityants or their nominees were divided into three classes—First, 40 years and upwards; second, from 20 to 40; and third, under 20 years of age.

The annuities were at the rate of 6 per cent. on sum subscribed, and were payable from Christmas, 1773.

As the lives fell in, in each class, the survivors of that class shared the entire amount, until every member received an annuity equal to his original subscription. After this the annuities of dying members fell to the Government.

Annuities to the amount of £10,500 were granted to subscribers under the Act of 1775 under similar conditions to the annuities of 1773, but, in this case, the amount set apart for each class was divided among the constantly diminishing members of the class until the last survivor received the entire amount payable yearly to his class.

Annuities to the amount of £22,500 were granted under the Act of 1777. It was intended to raise them at 6 per cent., as before, but as subscribers did not come in, the rate was increased to 7½. The other incidents are similar to those of 1775.

It may be mentioned that the annuities commenced 7, 6, and 18 months in the respective annuities before the time for the subscriptions had expired.

In order to enable persons in Great Britain to subscribe without the inconvenience of getting remittances from Dublin, agents were appointed in London by the Lord Lieutenant to pay annuities there according to rate of money current in Ireland.

Short Annuities and Long Annuities were granted to induce the public to subscribe to loans where additional inducement was required to secure subscribers when the price of Stock and the rate of interest were not considered sufficiently inviting.

Long Annuities were granted in connection with the great loans raised in England for imperial purposes during the French wars of 1798--1815, of which a portion was issued for Ireland. A certificate of the amount chargeable was received yearly, and the English Government was credited with that amount. There is no record of the annuityants in the account books of the Irish Treasury.

Assignments, Register of.—There is a volume for annuities of 1773 giving number of annuity, date and particulars of assignment. Like particulars for annuities of 1777 are to be found in the Subscribers' and Nominees' Register.

Cash Books, 1800--1804.—These give inter alia the accounts of the clerk who managed the annuity payments.

Day Books (Rough), 1786--95.—Account of payments in respect of life annuities. The proper entry books were filled up from this series.

Journal, 1779-1806.—This contains the transactions between the Vice-Treasurer or Teller of the Irish Exchequer and the London agent of the Irish Government for the payment of annuities payable in London, and the expenses of management.

Letter Book, 1777-1832.—Departmental correspondence concerning annuities.

London Annuities, 1807-8.—Expenses of management.

Nominee Books.—These give in dictionary order lists of the persons nominated by the subscribers to the different annuities, with their abodes, descriptions, and the sums subscribed, and also a collective view of the nominees of annuities that had "fallen" owing to death of nominee or forfeiture.

There are two volumes for each of the three annuities. In the case of 1777 there is a volume giving deficiencies in description of subscribers or nominees.

Nominee Books of Personal Appearance, 1797-1806, and 1812-30.—These give lists of nominees who appeared personally for payment at the Treasury Office.

Receipt Books.—These are very important as showing the amounts actually received and the persons who obtained the annuities. There are two classes of receipt books, one kept by the Treasury and the other by the Pells Department. In the Treasury books the annuities payable in Dublin and London are kept in the same volumes, but in the Pells Department separate books were kept.

Subscribers and Nominees, Register of.—These contain lists of debentures issued, date and number of issue, name and address of subscriber and nominee, and where the annuity was to be payable.

There are separate books for the annuities of 1773, 1775, and 1777, and there is an index.

Subscription Payment Book.—There are volumes for 1773 and 1775 giving names of subscribers and the particulars of the third, fourth and fifth payments of the instalments of the subscription. There is a similar volume giving third to sixth payments for 1777.

Loan Books.

The earliest loan charged on the Irish Exchequer, the record of which is preserved in the account books, was a sum of £33,050, at 10 per cent., advanced in 1692 by Sir Joseph Herne, Sir Stephen Evance, and Sir Wm. Scawen, of London, on security of the Quit and Crown rents.

Separate books were not kept for the payments of interest and principal, but the entries concerning them are to be found in the general cash books and ledgers. The greater part of this loan was paid off in 1697.

There are special loan books for subsequent loans; but abstracts of the accounts are entered in the Treasury Ledger and principal account books. They give the names of those who subscribed money for general or special purposes, those who were repaid, and those who received interest in the meantime. The loans were issued by authority of Parliament on debentures, annuities, lotteries, Treasury Bills, &c. It is difficult to classify the books dealing with transactions which are extremely complicated.

They naturally separate into two periods, one starting from 1715, when the second loan was issued, and ending in 1753, when the Irish public debt was practically paid off; the other, commencing in 1759 and ending 1817, when the Irish debt was merged in the debt of the United Kingdom.

The financial arrangement in the seventh article of the Act of Union, which became operative on 1st January, 1801, rendered Ireland liable to 2-17ths of the public expenditure. Vast expenditure became necessary at this time in connection with the Napoleonic wars, and Great Britain was found much more capable of standing the strain of war taxes than Ireland. Loans were necessary in both countries, but the Irish debt increased, in proportion, much more rapidly than the debt of Great Britain. Finally the Irish debt reached the point at which amalgamation became necessary, and in 1817 the Irish debt merged in that of the United Kingdom.

In order to explain the nature of the books a short history of the loans is furnished down to the period when money began to be raised by lotteries, Treasury Bills, &c.

A sum of £50,000 was raised for public defence by virtue of a resolution of Parliament, 1715. The interest was 8 per cent. until 1724, and 7 per cent. afterwards.

The debt was increased by £150,000 in 1729, and it bore interest at 6 per cent.; a further increase of £100,000 was made in 1731, and from this to 1741 the entire debt carried interest at the rate of 5 per cent.

In 1741 a loan of £125,000 at 4 per cent. was sanctioned. It was also enacted that £125,000 of the old debt should be reduced by lot to 4 per cent., and that the residue, which then consisted of £100,000, should continue to bear interest at 5 per cent.

A loan of £70,000, at 4 per cent., for the erection of batteries at Cork Harbour, was sanctioned in 1745, but only £58,500 seems to have been raised.

In 1749, the two sums of £125,000 and £58,500, at 4 per cent., were still unpaid, and £70,000, portion of the £100,000 bearing interest at 5 per cent., was also unpaid. The Vice-Treasurer was directed to pay off the sum of £70,000 at 5 per cent. then due, after 25th March, 1750, and out of the sum of £250,000 at 4 per cent. to pay off by lot a sum of £58,500. When these sums were paid off in 1750 the public debt consisted of £250,000 at 4 per cent., viz., £191,500 unpaid residue of the £250,000, and the £58,500 raised under loan for defence of Cork Harbour.

In 1751, £235,000, a portion of the £250,000 at 4 per cent., was still unpaid, and a further sum of £2,500 had been raised for defence of Cork Harbour. The Vice-Treasurer was directed to pay off by lot out of the balance in his hands a sum of £120,000, and in 1752, when this amount had been paid off, the public debt consisted of £117,500 at 4 per cent.

The entire debt, with the exception of outstanding arrears, seems to have been paid off in 1753.

A loan of £150,000 at 4 per cent., subsequently raised to 5, for the defence of the kingdom, was sanctioned in 1759. A further loan of £300,000 at same rate was sanctioned in 1761, but of this sum only £200,000 seems to have been raised. The debentures for this debt were called in to be cancelled and others issued in lieu thereof. A further loan of £400,000 at same rate was sanctioned, but of this sum only £300,000 seems to have been raised.

In 1763 the public debt consisted of £650,000 at 5 per cent., and it was enacted that of this, £300,000 should continue to bear interest at 5 per cent., and that £350,000, the residue chosen by lot, be reduced to 4 per cent. A further loan of £100,000 at 4 per cent. was sanctioned, but no part of it seems to have been raised.

The public debt, consisting of £600,000, partly at 4 and partly at 5 per cent., was consolidated in 1765, and the rate reduced to 4 per cent. A further loan of £100,000 at 4 per cent. was sanctioned, and debentures of £100 and £50 were issued to make up these sums. The new debentures were to commence and be numbered from the end of the previous debentures.

In 1767 the public debt amounted to £675,000 at 4 per cent., and a sum of £30,000 at 3½ per cent. was raised under a loan for £100,000 sanctioned that year.

In 1770, £625,000 residue of £675,000 at 4 per cent., and £30,000 at 3½, remained unpaid, and a further loan of £100,000 at 4 per cent. was raised to increase the Military Establishment.

The public debt amounted to £725,000 in 1771, portion being at 4 per cent., and the remainder at 3½. A further loan of £200,000 at not more than 4 per cent. was raised to increase the Military Establishment, and the Vice-Treasurer was directed whenever he had a balance of £30,000 to pay off so much of the 4 per cent. debentures.

The entire 3½ per cent. debt was paid off in 1773, and in the years 1773, 1775, and 1777, authority was given to raise the respective sums of £265,000, £175,000, and £166,000, by granting the annuities described under Annuity Books. (See above, page 60.)

In 1779 and subsequently, loans were raised by lotteries, Treasury Bills, &c., &c.

There is one loan book previous to 1730. From this period to 1756 they mainly consist of two series of receipt books for loan interest. One belonged to the Clerk of the Pells; the other belonged to the Vice-Treasurer, and was the counterpart of the books furnished by him to the Auditor-General. As the National Debt of Ireland ceased to exist in 1753 the last books of the series only deal with arrears of interest and debentures which were then paid off.

There are a few of the Vice-Treasurer's books for the loan of 1759, but they do not appear to have been kept for later loans.

Abstract Book, 1731--88.—Abstract of sums raised by debentures, Treasury Bills, and annuities during period of book.

Assignments, Registers.—These volumes give particulars of the different assignments of debentures issued for the various loans.

The same particulars are found in the receipt books:—

Bank Books.

Account Book, 1816--21.—Account of the Bank of Ireland with the Commissioners for reducing the National Debt.

Ledgers (Debt and Loan), 1797--1826.—These give the accounts of the Commissioners for reducing the National Debt with the Bank of Ireland and other banks, 1797--1826. One book contains an account of the various loans from 1799 to 1807, and the second, which commences in 1807, is a continuation of the loan accounts in the first.

Ledger (Stock), 1795--1826.—Account of the various kinds and amounts of Stock purchased for the Government.

Transaction Day Book, 1797--1821.—Account, in ledger form, of Stock in the Bank of Ireland, loan interest, &c. Stock is made Dr. to Bank for all payments on account of debentures redeemed, and Bank is made Dr. to Stock for sums received from the Treasury.

Cash Book, see Annuities Cash Book.

Discount on loan and lottery, 1782.

Letter Books, 1795--8.

Letters, &c., to the Treasury on matters connected with loans and lotteries.

Receipt Books.

These give the sums paid as interest, and are of two kinds—"Receipt books," and "rough payment books."

The regular receipt books give number of debenture, subscriber's name, state of interest, and signature of subscriber or nominee, together with a certificate from the Deputy-Clerk of the Pells. The rough payment books only contain entries of the names of the parties to whom interest was paid, and the number of the debenture or bill.

Sometimes this arrangement is reversed, the signature of recipient and the certificate of the Deputy-Clerk of the Pells appearing in the books which would otherwise have been rough payment books. In such case the books containing signature and certificate are regarded as receipt books, and the others as rough payment books.

There is one book for the period 1715--27 which gives an account for every subscriber or assignee to the loan of 1715. The particulars of assignments are also given. It is not strictly a receipt book, but as it is the earliest loan book it is classed with them.

1st. Receipt Books.—Various loans to 1753. 1715--1753.
" " after 1759. 1760--1806.

2nd. Rough Payment Books.—Some of these are rough books kept in the office temporarily, pending entries into regular account books, and they extend from 1769 to 1790.

The others are like the regular receipt books except that they want signature of recipient and certificate of Deputy-Clerk of the Pells. They consist of—

3½ and 4 per cent. loans and Short Annuities, ...	1790--3
3½, 4 and 5 per cent. loans and Short Annuities, ...	1794--5
3½ and 4 per cent. loans and Short Annuities, ...	1796--1806
5 per cent. loans and Short Annuities, ...	1796--1806

Receipt Books (Appendices), 1750--91.—There is a further class of receipt books which gives receipt for arrears of interest on debentures already paid off, as well as interest on debentures drawn to be paid off at a future date.

Subscribers, Registers of, 1761--1785 and 1795.

The receipt books give the names of subscribers and their assignees, but separate lists of subscribers were also kept. There is a special book giving the instalments of the loan of £400,000 subscribed by R. Shaw in 1795.

Subscribers, Registers of Debentures paid off, 1733--42.

The appendix books to receipt books and the receipt books themselves show when interest ceased, and, therefore, indicate when debentures were paid off; but for the above period regular registers were kept.

Lottery Books.

The only State lotteries in Ireland were in the years 1780--1, when debentures to the amount of £210,000 and £105,000, respectively, at 4 per cent., were issued to the fortunate subscribers. The interest was to continue until the debentures were paid off.

The loan receipt books contain the receipts for this interest. The other books are:—

Certificates, 1785--1804.—These give date of payment of lottery debenture, number of certificate, to whom paid, and amount.

Return of Prizes Outstanding, 1834.

Also see Bank and Loan Books.

Treasury Bills.

These were first issued under authority of the Act which sanctioned lottery loans (19 & 20 Geo. III., c. 2), and the amount under this Act was not to exceed £140,000 at 3d. per day per cent. interest. Other issues were made under subsequent Acts.

In 1784 the Government offered holders of Treasury Bills the option of exchanging their bills for 4 per cent. loan debentures, with a premium of 10 per cent. Bills to the amount of £15,250 were exchanged in this way, and the amount was thus transferred from the unfunded to the funded debt.

Receipt Books, 1780--1809.—These are similar to the loan receipt books. The (1st) receipt books extend as above, and (2nd) the rough payment books, 1790--1805.

Also see annuity cash books.

Vote of Credit.

In 1759 the House of Commons passed a resolution authorising a loan of £300,000 at 5 per cent. There are receipt books for interest paid in respect of sums subscribed extending from 1761 to Lady Day, 1762.

NAVAL BOOKS: GREENWICH HOSPITAL, &c.

Advertisements of Naval Prizes, 1809--29.

Answers to Applications for Prize Money, 1806--32.

Applications for Prize Money, 1806--18.

Attorneys to discharged Seamen, 1809--18.

Blotter, 1810--32.—Rough entries of payments of prize money.

Cash Book, 1806--29.—Account of Treasurer to the Hospital.

Certificates, 1803.—This volume gives number, name and abode of persons entitled to receive prize money.

Letter Book, 1806--32.—Correspondence with reference to prize money and of a departmental character.

Lists, 1782--1829, 1790--1830.—These give very full particulars regarding the out-pensioners.

Notifications, 1805--29.—Notifications of the distribution of prize money.

Orders, 1809--18.—The orders made on applications for prize money.

Prizes paid into Greenwich Hospital, 1805--29.

PARLIAMENTARY GRANTS.

Account of the grants voted by Parliament in 1831, together with the services, issues, and remains for the years 1831--4. After January, 1835, the then remains were taken as savings for the Session 1835 by Treasury letter of 13th March, 1835.

PARLIAMENTARY RETURNS.

These are very imperfect, many books being missing. They are of two kinds:—

1st.—Copy orders from the House of Commons and Lord Lieutenant, with the returns made thereon for the years 1771--1835.

2nd.—Returns furnished to the British and Irish Governments by the Vice-Treasurer as representing the Auditor-General during the years 1822--37.

PAY SALARY AND ALLOWANCE.—See Ledgers.

PAYMENT BOOKS.

1st.—Pells Office, 1730--1798.

The Clerk of the Pells was to keep a full account of all payments of public money made in the Treasury, and these payment books contain, under their proper heads, entries of all payments on the civil and military establishments, and for exceptional services. Of these very few books are missing.

Previous to 1788-9 they contain entries of every kind, but afterwards they were split up as follows:—

Civil, Military and Parliamentary, and Miscellaneous.

2nd.—Teller's Office.

These give an account of the weekly payments by the Teller of the Exchequer during the years 1804-37.

3rd.—Treasury.

These state whether payments were made by Exchequer acquittance or by Teller, and give name of receiver, sum, and service, during the years 1779-85.

See Issue Books.

PAYMENT AND RECEIPT BOOKS (Treasury).

There are two great series of these books. One commences in 1654, and ends in 1822; the other commences in 1577 and ends in 1736. Both series are defective, several books not being forthcoming, but they supplement each other, and, taken with the payment and receipt rolls and Collectors' Accounts, give an almost unbroken resumé of the public accounts from 1577 to 1822, when the office of Auditor-General was abolished.

Each book is divided into three divisions:—The first contains all the receipts into the Treasury; the second, all the payments in respect of the Civil List, and a statement from the Deputy Receiver-General that the balance of the receipts, after the payments on the Civil List have been made, is available towards payment of the Military List; and the last contains all payments on the Military List.

The payments are the same as those in the payment books of the Pells Office; one set of books signed by the Deputy Receiver-General was evidently prepared for the Auditor-General. The other set is a copy, and was always kept in the Treasury Office.

These books give the payments of every kind in classified form, but the receipts are sometimes only given in the form of abstracts to show the charge on the Treasury.

Down to March, 1794, the payments mainly consisted of the Civil List, Military List, Extraordinaries, including Parliamentary payments and payments on King's letters, and appropriated duties, and these payments were made from the funds realised from the hereditary revenue, additional revenue, appropriated duties, and loans.

After March, 1794, the Consolidated Fund was formed from the hereditary revenue, additional duties, and loans; and Appropriated Duties were raised as before. The entire revenue of the country consisted, therefore, of Consolidated Fund and Appropriated Duties, and from these were paid the Civil List, pensions, the list for military purposes, and other payments as before. Appropriated Duties were always paid for the purposes to which they had been appropriated.

In 1760 the entire revenue, consisting of Hereditary Revenue, Additional Duties, Appropriated Funds, and Loans, comprised the following sub-heads, viz.:—Ordinary revenue from the several collectors; other revenue from the same collectors appropriated to Loan, Linen, Tillage, Cambric, Protestant Schools, and Lagan Navigation; Quit and Crown Rents, Casual Revenue, Duty on Wrought Plate, Poundage of Additional Duties, Dismissed Collectors, Military Repayments, Subscription to Loan.

In 1795 the entire revenue, consisting of the Consolidated Fund, and Appropriated Duties, comprised the following sub-heads, viz.:—Ordinary Revenue, Quit Rents, Casualties, Stamps, Postage, Duties on Wrought Plate, Public Coal Yards, Wool Licences, Tax on Salaries, Poundage, Pells Fee, Loan and Bills, Lottery, Military Repayments; and the Appropriated Funds were for Loan, Linen, Lagan Navigation, Improving Dublin, Irish Fisheries, and King's Inns.

In 1760 the payments on the Civil List are classed as Exchequer, King's Bench, Chancery, Common Pleas, State Officers, Incidents, Custom Officers, Perpetuities, Appeals, Pensions, French Pensioners, Non-conforming Ministers, Concordatum, Prizage, Commissioners and Overseers of Barracks, Admiralty, Commissioners of Accounts, Linen, Cambric, Protestant Schools, Printing the Journals, &c., Roman Catholic Academy.

The Appropriated Funds include Loan, Lagan Navigation, Improving Dublin, Lighthouse on the Isle of Arran; other Appropriation Accounts were Linen, Irish Fisheries, Lighthouses round the coast, and King's Inns.

In 1795 the heads of payments were similar.

PAYMENT AND RECEIPT ROLLS.

These Rolls properly commence in 1545, but with them are deposited two rolls of a similar nature—remnants of an older series.

The oldest Roll, extending over the period T23--T24, Ed. I., 1295--6, contains an account of sums delivered out of the Exchequer, and other sums paid for necessary expenses. It shows the fees paid to the Treasurer and other officers of the Exchequer, and the office expenses of the Exchequer; fees to the Lord Chancellor, Justices of the Bench, Keepers of Castles, &c. This and a similar Roll for 30 Ed. I. are printed at pages 124 and 166 of Volume I., Record Commissioners' Reports.

The second is a Counter-Roll giving the Chamberlain's receipts, H43--T45, Ed. III., 1369--71.

The Payment and Receipt Rolls (proper) commence at 1545, and are the engrossed accounts passed before the Commissioners of Accounts, who sign them. They are practically copies of the payment and receipt books described immediately above. They cease in 1822.

The Military Account Rolls practically only commence in 1623. There is a special military roll, 1575--9, and two military ledgers 1579--84, and 1586--7. These give minute information concerning all military payments and exceptional services, such as rewards for captures of rebels, conveying letters, and other acts to facilitate Government.

The absence of the other books and rolls is a great loss to Irish history.

PELLS OFFICE.

Precedents.—This volume extends from 1776 to 1798, and contains miscellaneous entries of forms for certificates, receipts and accounts furnished; copies of various King's letters authorising issues of money, appointing Treasury Commissioners, and the principal officers of the Treasury and Pells Offices.

See Abstracts, Fees, National Debt, Life Annuity and Loan Receipt Books, Payment Books, Receipt Books, Revenue Collectors' Payment and Acquittance Books.

PENSION BOOKS.

Pension Accounts, 1830--7.—Payments and receipts of Tellers of the Exchequer on account of pensions. There are also:—

1st.—Pension list extending from 1753 to 1826 giving an account of the pensions charged on the Civil List previous to 1827.

2nd.—Pension list extending from 1777 to 1779, with an account of the arrears thereon.

3rd.—Pension list extending from 1793 to 1833.

4th.—Pension list of Houghed Soldiers, 1796--9.

„ (Special Acts, Secret Annuities, &c.), 1801--37.

5th.—Pensions payable out of £240,000 voted in 1831, being those formerly on the Civil List, but not appearing in that of Wm. IV.

Pensions Payment Book, 1830--3.—Payments of Civil List Pensions.

Warrant, 1831.—Royal Warrant regranting pensions formerly on Civil List, and list of salaries charged on same.

POPULATION ABSTRACTS.

Abstracts of population under the Act 52 Geo. III., c. 133, arranged according to counties.

PUGET, BAINBRIDGE &amp; Co.

This was a great London banking company. The Irish Treasury transacted all its English business through this house, and several other matters with reference to loans, &c.

Account of Receipts from Puget & Bainbridge being the quarterly amounts paid by them into the British Exchequer on behalf of the Irish Treasury for Sinking Fund, Interest on Government Stock, Long Annuities, and expenses of management. Every account is signed and dated by the Deputy-Clerk of the Pells, and the payments are recorded in the Payment and Receipt Books, page 66, &c. They extend from January, 1798, to January, 1817.

Bills, 1799--1804.—These seem to be lists of the Bills drawn by the Irish Treasury on this house, together with accounts for the various parties by whom they were cashed.

See Letters to Treasury re Loans.

REBELLION OF 1798.

See Voluntary Contributions.

RECEIPT BOOKS (TREASURY RECEIPTS).

Receipt Books.

The books containing entries of receipts into the Treasury were kept in different departments according to the annexed list; but as they deal with the same transactions they are here classed together.

For their respective periods they record receipts of every kind, and their scope can be understood on examining the principal classes of receipts at page 66, or the more detailed list at page 71.

Every receipt had to be entered with the Chamberlains and Clerk of the Pells, as well as the Vice-Treasurer, and these officers were a check on the Vice-Treasurer, who was responsible for the amounts entered by these officials.

Books signed by the proper officer in each department were delivered to the Auditor-General to be compared with similar books from the Vice-Treasurer and the vouchers in his possession.

The books are counterparts of one another, and contain under their proper heads the amount of revenue received; to explain their scope see the list of the principal sources of revenue in the years 1760 and 1795, given at page 66.

Copies of the books supplied to the Auditor-General were kept in the office of the Clerk of the Pells.

Some few books, which belong to the Chamberlains or Clerk of the Pells, are included in the Vice-Treasurer's receipt books, as they are really counterparts, and previous to 1660 there are very few books for the Chamberlains and Clerk of the Pells.

Receipts, 1806--35.

Weekly accounts of receipts of revenue of every kind, from England as well as Ireland, including repayments of wages to seamen, profits on Loans, Lotteries, &c.

Receipts (Rough), 1800--37.

The rough receipt books contain weekly accounts of receipts into the Treasury.

RETURNS.

Returns of meal imported from America during the years 1800--1 by vessels touching at Cork for orders, sales thereof in Dublin, and the accounts of Government contractors for importing same.

Returns relative to the expense and maintenance of the poor of England, 43 Geo. III.

REVENUE BOOKS.

The nature and classes of the public revenue can be gathered by referring to the lists of receipts at page 71. The machinery for collecting it is described at page 70 (Collectors' Accounts). The principal and finished accounts are to be found in the payment and receipt books and rolls, cash books, &c., but the following books, which were subsidiary to these or kept for a special purpose, give much information. In 1804 separate Commissioners for Excise and Customs were appointed, thus completing a difference which had previously existed in the collection of these classes of revenue. On this account Revenue Books will be divided into Customs, Excise, and General Revenue Books.

Customs.

Bills, 1808--9.—Particulars of Bills received from the Collectors of Customs.

Incidents, 1811.—Payments in respect of incidents.

Letter Books, see Letter Books (General).

Excise.

Bills, 1808.—Particulars of Bills received from Excise Collectors.

Establishment Books, 1793--1812.—Quarterly returns of districts, officers and others on the establishment, together with their pay for the years 1793--1812.

Instructions for Gaugers, 1781.

Instructions for Inspectors, 1781.

Also see Revenue Books, Customs.

Letter Book, 1779--1803.—This book contains the General Orders.

Also see Letter Books (General).

General Revenue Books.

Abstracts, see Abstracts (General).

Approbations, 1800--6.—Approbations of His Excellency to memorials from the Customs and Excise departments.

Balances, 1795--1823.—Weekly remains or balances. The weekly abstracts give the receipts, issues and remains in the Treasury, the remains being the balances in the Teller's hands. This balance was distributed among the various branches of the Consolidated and Appropriated Funds, and the books are really counterparts of the "remains" column of the weekly abstracts.

Bills, 1804--7.—The Receiver-General's returns of Bills from the Revenue Districts.

Also see Revenue, Customs, and Excise.

Bills (Stamps), 1805--7.—Like returns in respect of Stamps.

Casual Revenue, 1829--37.—Returns of the Casual Revenue.

Collectors' Accounts, 1649--1822.

A sketch of the heads of the Revenue dealt with by the Revenue Collectors in 1790--1 is given on pages 71--2 to explain the nature and scope of their duties. Roughly speaking, they embrace Quit and Crown Rents, Customs, Excise, Seizures, Hearthmoney, &c.

During the Commonwealth Ireland was divided into Revenue Precincts and the Collectors accounted for the revenue received by them taking credit for salaries, expenses, and payments made on order.

During the greater part of the reign of Charles II. the largest part of the Revenue was farmed at fixed sums, and the farmers having paid, when directed, any demands warranted by the Establishments, sent in their accounts and took credit for these.

Commissioners of Revenue were appointed in 1682, on the expiration of the farm of the Revenue. All Ireland was divided into Revenue districts. Collectors were appointed to levy the various branches of the Revenue, subject to the directions of the Commissioners of Revenue.

The Collectors' accounts of receipts and payments (including salaries and expenses), with vouchers in support of same, were sent in quarterly, checked and audited, and deposited with the Auditor-General. Their receipts, after deducting salaries, expenses, and monies paid on acquittance or by order, were paid into the Treasury. These accounts give, from quarter to quarter, a very good idea of the commerce and various industries in the country, subject to taxation, and the persons engaged thereat. In this way they indirectly furnish extensive material for family history, as they give the names of the various persons to whom money was paid, &c. Every Collector acted as a Government banker, for, at a time when banking was in its infancy, if the Government desired to make a payment to somebody living, say, near Ennis, Cork, or Dingle, it simply sent him a "receipt" on the local Collector, who paid the amount when the payer handed him the Treasury receipt duly endorsed. The expense of coming to Dublin, or of sending money first to Dublin and afterwards to the locality where it was to be paid, was obviated in this way.

This receipt was called an "Acquittance," and could always be met by the Collector to whom it was issued, as the funds in the hands of the different Collectors were always known from their returns.

Military payments, bounties, &c., were very often paid in this way, and the accounts, accordingly, are full of the most valuable information. They cease with the abolition of the office of Auditor-General in 1822.

The Commissioners of Revenue were succeeded early in the nineteenth century by the Commissioners of Customs and Excise.

Stamps and Post Office Revenue were not levied under this system.

The accounts commence in 1649, but are very imperfect to 1683, when the Collectors' quarterly accounts commence.

As an example of the different CHARGES and HEADS of REVENUE and EXPENDITURE appearing in the books of Public Accounts of the Kingdom, the following Summary of the annual Balance Sheet is given as printed in the "Commons Journals," vol. xv., app. pp. xxiv.—xxv., for the year ending Lady-day, 1791 (the balances on hand from the previous year being omitted).

Collectors' Payments and Acquittance Books.

These books give an account of payments by the Revenue Collectors, on account of the Treasury, of money they had collected. The money formed portion of the Treasury Receipts, but instead of being received directly from the Revenue Collectors, was paid to third parties, who handed in Treasury Receipts for the amount. The object of this is explained in description of Collectors' Accounts above.

Acquittance Books (Pells), 1688-1726.—These give an account, in day-book form, of acquittances issued to Revenue Collectors. There is a volume for 1705-10, from the Second Chamberlain's office, which is a duplicate of preceding volumes for corresponding period.

Acquittance Books (Treasury), 1718-96.—These give an account of cash received from the Revenue Collectors, and also of acquittances. Acquittances presented for payment to a Collector gave name of party, Collector for whom issued, and often the service for which it was issued.

Deputy Receiver-General's Books.

Cash Book, see Cash Books, General.

Journal, 1779-85, 1788-95.—Journal of entries in Deputy Receiver-General's Cash Books.

Ledgers, 1788-95.—These are styled Collectors' Ledgers, and contain accounts of different Collectors and Bills receivable. These accounts are kept in different volumes towards end of series.

Ledger (Miscellaneous), 1752-77.—Special accounts of various persons drawn up in ledger form by direction of the Deputy Receiver-General. They were prepared for special purposes, and the particulars are taken from the cash books of the Teller of the Exchequer, who was his executive officer.

Letter Books, 1784-95.—Copies of letters acknowledging receipt of Bills or remittances from bankers and collectors of revenue; or forwarding Bills or receipts to the former and acquittances to the latter.

Register of Bills Receivable, 1783-95.—These give date of receipt of remittance, from whom received, date of Bill, by whom drawn, on whom, and in whose favour, whether at date or sight, when accepted, when due, number, and amount.

Book containing forms for Bills and letters concerning receipt and payment of money, Cash Book, Certificates, General Imprest Roll.

Incidents, 1792-1816.

Accounts furnished to the Treasury by the Commissioners of Revenue of sums expended at the various Revenue districts in collection of the Revenue; and consisting of office expenses, salaries, allowances, and bounty. Separate books were kept for part of the time.

Customs and Excise, 1792-1807. { Customs, 1807-16.

See Collectors' Accounts, page 70.

Orders.

General Orders, 1804-5.—Orders relating to the collection and payment of Revenue.

Treasury Orders, 1804-17.—Orders from the Treasury directing the Commissioners of Customs and Excise to report on various matters.

Treasury Orders, Register of, 1804-17.

Port Establishment, 1795.

Quit Kents, &c., 1792-1803.

Account of Crown and Quit Rent received.

Receipts, 1793--4, 1810--14.

Weekly receipts for Customs, Excise, Stamps, and totals.

Reference Book, 1796--9.

Orders from the Treasury with reference to repayments and arrears directed to the Accountant-General or the Commissioners of the Revenue.

Returns.

Return of bonded stuffs from various ports, 1809.

Returns (Inland Department), 1798.—Weekly returns of the Receiver-General for the Inland Department.

Seizures, 1795--8.

These books give name of port, goods seized, by whom seized, net produce, how disposed of, authority, Crown and officers' respective shares. There is an index to seizures for 1809.

Specie Books.

Collectors' Specie Books, 1797--9.—Weekly abstracts of specie and notes in the Collectors' hands.

General Specie Books.—These books are partly cash books and partly journals of receipts and payments in the Treasury, either in the Teller's or Vice-Treasurer's department. They commence in 1742 and end in 1798. Only a few books remain.

SAVINGS BANKS' BOOKS.

By the Act 57 Geo. III., c. 105, for encouraging Savings Banks, sums of money were paid into the Bank of Ireland to the credit of the Commissioners for reducing the National Debt, and on account of various Savings Banks in the following manner:—

Three of the trustees of any Savings Banks, maintained solely for the benefit of the depositors, and no interest therein being claimed for any trustee or officer, issued an order directing the payment of a sum of money into the Bank of Ireland to the account of the above Commissioners and authorising the party making the payment to receive a Saving Bank debenture therefor. This order was presented to an officer of the Commissioners, who granted a certificate that he had seen the order, and on delivery of the said certificate and payment of the said sum, the officer within five days after payment, delivered a debenture containing a receipt signed by a Cashier of the Bank of Ireland for the amount, and carrying interest at the rate of three pence per cent. per day. The principal and interest of such debentures were chargeable on the monies or funds standing to the credit of the said Commissioners in the said Bank.

The interest on debentures was to be paid annually on the 5th April, or on demand, and on receipt of the interest the debenture was delivered up to be cancelled, and a new debenture was issued in lieu thereof.

Day Books, 1817--23.

These are really Journals: when a payment was made in favour of a particular Savings Bank the Bank of Ireland was debited for the amount to the Savings Bank which received a debenture for the amount, and the Bank and Savings Bank were credited with the amount of Stock purchased.

Debentures Cancelled, 1818--28.

These debentures were delivered up on receipt of interest and gummed to receipt blocks, which contained the receipts of the Cashier to the Bank of Ireland for the sums received from the Savings Banks, and placed to the account of Commissioners for reducing the National Debt. Some blocks are not filled up.

Receipt Forms, 1827--8.

These are the receipt forms for half-yearly interest.

Superintendents' Certificates, 1827--8.

Certificates from the proper officer of the Commissioners for reducing the National Debt, on receipt of which the Cashier of the Bank of Ireland was authorised to receive payments from the Savings Bank and place same to the account of the said Commissioners.
